Capital Due To Get Snow, 17-Degree Cold Today

Southwest Virginia Whitened; Frigid Wave Hits Central And Eastern U. S.

Winter's advance guard, pushing south through the center of the United States, yesterday was battering its way east through the Alleghenies.

Invading spearheads were expected to arrive in Washington before dawn. A weather Bureau communique said: "Probably snow and turning much colder early today. Partial clearing in afternoon or evening. Sunday: Probably cold."

Temperatures were expected to range from 17 to 25 degrees, following a high of 58 degrees yesterday at 1:20 p. m. and a low of 39 at 1:20 a. m. The Metropolitan Police Department warned its drivers to be sure their cars had alcohol in the radiators.

Winter's invasion, driving away weather that was 6 degrees above normal (42) Thanksgiving Day, was reaching clear down to the Gulf of Mexico. Moderate to heavy snow was reported in the Appalachians.

In Virginia, the first major snowfall of the season whitened the southwestern portion yesterday, sending highway crews into action. At Richmond, the State highway department said the fall began about 5 a. m., and fanned eastward.

The Blue Ridge Mountains appeared to be the eastern limit of the most serious precipitation yesterday.

Gate City had 6 inches of snow. So did Wytheville. Nine inches was reported from Lee County and 10 inches in Narrows.

State police issued an urgent warning to motorists to equip their cars with chains.

Maryland was bracing itself for its first general snowfall, expected during the night, with a low of 10 above.

Generally, the snow would be light with some of it mixed with rain, according to the forecast; a fall of two to four inches was predicted for the mountains in the western part of the State.

Yesterday morning the Weather Bureau in Baltimore issued a special cold wave warning.

The fall's coldest weather was expected this weekend in New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, West Virginia, Maryland, Virginia and eastern Tennessee.

Charleston, W. Va., reported its heaviest blanket of snow since 1948.

Snow was piled up to a depth of 12 inches in some parts of West Virginia, and dangerous driving conditions prevailed over the State.

Snowstorms were reported in Knoxville, Tenn., and, to the north, in Pittsburgh, where traffic was temporarily paralyzed.

The bad weather discouraged highway travel and lowered the prospective holiday death toll. A United Press survey showed 203 persons lost their lives over Thanksgiving, 77 of them in the Long Island commuter train wreck.

Other fatalities included 84 in traffic mishaps, 5 in hunting accidents, and 37 in miscellaneous accidents.

To Fix Plan of Action

Truman Calls Monday Parley With Top Party Legislators

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

President Truman yesterday called a "Big Four" legislative conference for Monday on his short session legislative program as Republicans teed off on its two major themes, taxes and foreign policy.

Senator Eugene D. Millikin (Colo.), chairman of the Senate Republican conference, said he felt "personally committed" to passage of an excess profits tax, one of the key items on the Administration agenda.

But he resumed the Republican attack on Secretary of State Dean Acheson and Administration foreign policies in the Far East. He said he thought the Far East policy would be the chief "issue" this session.

Millikin termed "Achesonian Jackassery" the Secretary's recent comment that the Nation's "isolationists" have been replaced by "a new species of homo sapiens, the re-examinists."

Acheson coined the "re-examinist" phrase last week in a thinly veiled dig at Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio).

Democratic preparations for the "Lame Duck" session convening Monday, meanwhile, were quietly shaping up. Mr. Truman notified his House and Senate leaders that he wanted to see them Monday morning before Congress goes to work.

The program already tentatively scheduled for the three-to-four week session includes a four-billion-dollar profits tax bill, Statehood for Hawaii and Alaska, rent control extension, aid to Yugoslavia and multi-billions for defense.

Senate Administration Leader Scott W. Lucas (D., Ill.), defeated for reelection, was among the first of the Democratic "Big Four" steersmen to return to the Capitol. Lucas conferred briefly with Senate Secretary Leslie L. Biffle. He is expected to call a Senate Democratic policy meeting probably

Tydings Visits Truman; Seeks No U. S. Office

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Senator Millard E. Tydings (D., Md.) told President Truman yesterday that he was going to practice law in Washington and Baltimore, and that he didn't want an ambassadorship or any other kind of Federal job.

The 60-year-old lawmaker, who was defeated November 7 in his race for a fifth 6-year term, appeared to be in a gay mood as he emerged from Mr. Truman's office.

"The President offered to resign and give me his job," Tydings said jokingly, "and I wouldn't take it."

In a more serious mood, he said there wasn't a thing in the world that he wanted—in the Cabinet, out of the Cabinet, or abroad.

There had been reports in advance of his White House visit yesterday that he would be named to some important diplomatic post. Not much doubt existed that he could have had such an appointment from the President. Tydings, however, was so intent on exploding the job rumors that he was ready with a prepared statement to hand reporters.

"I called upon the President just to pay my respects," the statement said.

"I told the President that I had no desire whatever to reenter public life and consequently did not desire any appointment or position of any kind at home or abroad.

"Commencing with January 3 I shall enter actively upon the practice of law with offices in Washington and Baltimore.

"After a long period spent in public service, I am looking forward with happy anticipation to devoting myself to my profession

Senator Frank P. Graham (D., N. C.), who was defeated in a primary election in the summer, also called on President Truman yesterday. There were advance reports that he might be offered a $15,000-a-year post as director of the National Science Foundation.

Queen Elizabeth Sees Horse Win

KEMPTON PARK, England, Nov. 24 (AP)—Queen Elizabeth saw Manicou, her 5-year-old steeplechaser, gallop to an easy six lengths win in the Wimbledon Handicap today. She won a purse of 300 pounds ($840).

Manicou, a bay horse by Last Post-Mylae, was the 5 to 4 favorite in the field of seven that started for the three-mile race.

Bumper-to-Bumper Traffic

Store Sales, Yule Season Lure Thousands of Shoppers

Bargain-hunting shoppers by thousands crowded stores in the Washington area yesterday, lured by post-Thanksgiving sales and the opening of the Christmas season.

Crowds of housewives and Government workers, taking advantage of their annual leave, were swollen by out-of-town sightseers making the most of the long holiday weekend.

Santa Claus was besieged, as usual, by kiddies and their mothers standing eight deep to see him in one store. Jovial Santa himself seemed in good spirits despite the pulling and tugging of children trying to tell him their Christmas desires.

Although policemen were working in pairs at many of the F st. intersections, traffic barely moved. Many, burdened with packages, were left standing on streetcar platforms. Traffic moved bumper-to-bumper on many downtown streets. A shopper from Alexandria said the trip from her home took more than an hour.

Some stores reported that heavy appliances and furniture were selling at a brisk rate, along with the usual run of Christmas wares. Many television sets were being sold at reductions as high as 75 percent, as many of the appliance stores featured post-Thanksgiving sales. Despite the heavy selling, storekeepers declined to say whether the volume of sales was higher than last year's post-Thanksgiving buying until receipts are counted.

U. S. Unwraps 7-Point Jap Peace Plan

Premature Release In Moscow Forces Hand; Reds Raise Issue on Islands

By John M. Hightower
Associated Press Reporter

The United States yesterday pulled the wraps off its seven-point proposal for a Japanese peace treaty, offering Russia a voice in determining the future of the island of Formosa.

At the same time it was disclosed that Russia has challenged the American proposals, particularly with respect to the disposition of Formosa and other islands. This raised doubts whether the Soviet would go along in the writing of an early Japanese treaty.

The publication of the American proposals was forced by their earlier disclosure in Moscow yesterday. Moscow also published a note from the Russians to the United States questioning details of the American plan.

Release Held Bad Sign

The fact that the Russians decided to make public what the United States and other nations had been treating as confidential for many weeks was taken by officials here as a bad sign. They believed the Russians may be trying to make propaganda instead of an agreement.

The State Department made public a note which was circulated last month by John Foster Dulles, American diplomat at the U. N., among the members of the 13-nation Far Eastern Commission.

After stating that the U. S. seeks a Japanese treaty which would end the state of war and restore Japan's sovereignty as "an equal in the society of free peoples," the note laid down seven "principles" for negotiation among the nations which won the war in the Pacific.

Three of these principles appeared to be of special importance and perhaps significant sources of controversy.

They are:

1. The treaty would be written by "any or all" of the victor nations which were willing to cooperate. That apparently leaves the way open for the U. S. and other non-Communist nations to go ahead with the treaty if the Russians balk.

2. Responsibility for Japan's security, until such time as the U. N. could guarantee it, would be assumed by American and "perhaps other forces." This is a way of saying that United States forces now in Japan would con-

F.D.R. to John Cudahy in Dublin

THE WHITE HOUSE,
March 9, 1938

Dear John:

Your analysis of what happened in England is the best I have seen. As someone remarked to me—"If a Chief of Police makes a deal with the leading gangsters and the deal results in no more hold-ups, that Chief of Police will be called a great man—but if the gangsters do not live up to their word the Chief of Police will go to jail." Some people are, I think, taking very long chances—don't you?

As ever yours,

A British cabinet crisis developed over the appeasement policy of the Chamberlain government, in the course of which Foreign Minister Eden was forced out of the cabinet. Chamberlain was ready to recognize Mussolini's conquest of Ethiopia in return for a pact of friendship.

Eden wanted Ethiopian recognition to be part of a general Mediterranean settlement reached in close understanding with France. It was Cudahy's opinion that Eden had been eliminated to appease Mussolini, who had taken a violent dislike to him.

WRITTEN FOR THE RECORD

That is a mighty nice letter of yours and I am glad to have it for what you properly call "the eventual record."

There were a good many people who at that time, in 1928, believed—some of them honestly and some because they wanted to—that I was headed for a tombstone.

Just to keep that same eventual record straight, I do not mind telling you, in complete 100% confidence, that in 1923, when I first went to Florida after an attack of infantile paralysis in 1921, my old running mate, Jim Cox, came to see me on my house-boat in Miami. At that time I was, of course, walking with great difficulty—braces and crutches. Jim's eyes filled

Freak Gas Blanket Over Oil Field Smothers Thirteen

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 24 (AP).—A freak gas blanket in the Poza Rica oil field near Vera Cruz smothered 13 sleeping inhabitants to death early this morning.

Petroleos Mexicanos (Pemex), the government oil monopoly, said 47 others were overcome.

The company blamed a thick fog, low temperature and the wind direction.

The gas, from a plant which removed sulphur from crude oil, gathered in a settlement at the oil field.

West Europe Parley Votes Unified Army

Meeting at Strasbourg Includes German Units In Defense Plan

STRASBOURG, France, Nov. 24 (U.P.).—The European Assembly voted overwhelmingly tonight to recommend creation of a unified European army, including German fighting units, to defend free Europe from Russian aggression.

The vote was 83 for, 7 against and 19 abstentions. Four German Socialist delegates were among those who voted against. A dinner-hour compromise, pledging no discrimination against German units, swung the rest of the German votes for the proposal.

All of Europe's leaders—except the Germans—had appealed for a favorable vote for the projected army as a "note of courage and faith in peoples in every part of the world." The defense force, first suggested by Winston Churchill, had the official support of the French government.

French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman opened the debate with a plea to Germany to forget the generations-old French-German feud and join in building a European army.

Former French Premier Georges Bidault, a Resistance leader during German occupation, told the delegates the joint army might "heal the century-old wound of Europe"—traditional French-German enmity.

Just before the vote, 3000 European students who converged on Strasbourg without passports, marched in torch-lit numbers on the House of Europe, the Assembly's home, to swear they would never again fight in national armies and to demand creation of a United States of Europe.

Schuman rejected the idea of an Atlantic Pact army as a "temporary" device.

U. S. Casualties in Korea Exceed All But Three Wars

By the United Press

The Korean war already is the fourth bloodiest in United States history. It has resulted in higher casualties than the revolution, the Mexican and Spanish-American campaigns or the War of 1812.

Only in World Wars I and II and the Civil War did more Americans fall in action.

The Defense Department reported yesterday that United States casualties in Korea through last Friday totaled 29,996.

That included 4993 dead, 20,568 wounded and 4439 missing in action. It was an increase of 1115 over the total reported last week.

In the Revolutionary War, the American colonists suffered only 12,172 casualties, including something more than 4000 killed. Casualties in the War of 1812 ran about 7000; in the Mexican War about 17,000, and in the Spanish-American War about 10,000.

The Philippine Insurrection, the Cuban fighting in 1906-1909, the Mexican border wars in 1911-1916 and others resulted in casualties of only 7392.

The two World Wars and the Civil War top all United States wars in casualties. World War I cost nearly 250,000; World War II about 1,130,000, and the Civil War about 650,000.

Friendly American Pressure

French Grant of Independence For Indo-China Pleases U. S.

By Ferdinand Kuhn
Post Reporter

Official word reached Washington yesterday that the French Government had agreed at last to give real independence to the three French-sponsored states fighting the Communist-led enemy in Indo-China.

For months the French have been under friendly American pressure to take such a step in their own best interests. They have also been under the sharper pressure of military defeats in recent weeks, and the danger that the whole Indo-China peninsula might fall into Communist control.

Whatever the reason for the new policy, and however belated it might be, officials here were glad that the French had taken the plunge. The National Assembly in Paris has now voted, by more than 4 to 1, to:

(1) Give genuine independence, within the French Union, to the three "associated states" of Viet Nam, Laos and Cambodia;

(2) Permit the formation and equipment of native Indo-Chinese forces under the command of Bao Dai, the former emperor of Annam;

(3) Remove most French functionaries from their posts in Indo-China by January 1, and stop the collection of any revenues for France; and

(4) Send 25,000 new French troops, with artillery, planes and naval units, to help stop the Communist-led attack. The United States will help directly and indirectly to supply both the French and the Indo-Chinese forces, at a cost estimated at between 300 and 400 million dollars during two years.

The new French policy goes even further than was called for in the agreements between the French and Indo-Chinese signed on March 8 of last year. For one thing, it will give the Indo-Chinese states the right to send ambassadors to any foreign country they wish.

It is understood that Bao Dai intends to send a full-fledged diplomatic mission to the United States as well as to other important non-Soviet countries.

The hope here is that all this will have an important effect in stopping the Communist-led invasion, which is being helped from across the border in Communist China and is now threatening the great rice-growing delta of the Red River around Hanoi.

The United States has long argued that the only hope of checking the Communists is to set up a genuinely independent anti-Communist nationalist movement. Military opinion here believes the French have a better-than-even chance to hold the delta, but in the long run the only hope is an effective native army, under its own leaders.

Commodity Prices Decline Sharply On Korean News

NEW YORK, Nov. 24 (AP).—News of the big Allied drive to end the Korean war by Christmas sent commodity future prices plunging today in one of the sharpest market breaks of the year.

Prices of some commodities for future delivery, including soybeans, cottonseed and soybean oils and rubber, dropped as much as exchange rules allow for any one day.

Wool, cotton, cocoa, raw hides, zinc, and cereal and feed grains all were sharply lower.

Pigeon-Holed at Pentagon

'Fox-Hole Pay' Plan, Approved By Army, Readied for Congress

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Legislation to give front-line troops in Korea extra combat pay—long pigeonholed at the Pentagon—is expected to go to Congress soon.

Senator Tom Connally (D., Tex.) yesterday made public a letter from a Defense official stating that the "fox-hole pay" plan had been approved by the Department of the Army and submitted to the Department of Defense.

The official—Col. C. G. Blakeney, Army legislative liaison officer—added Defense Department chiefs expressed considerable interest in it and that Army officials expected legislation will be sent to the Capitol soon.

The proposal to extend the existing "hazard duty pay" to officers and men actually fighting at the front was prepared by the Army General Staff earlier last summer It provides for an extra $100 a month for officers and $50 for enlisted men.

Then, the proposal "got stuck," apparently shelved by some Assistant Secretary or special assistant within the Department of the Army.

This was the situation a month ago, as revealed at the time by The Washington Post. The story produced instant action, Army officials said later, and the bill was given immediate attention and priority action.

Foe Hurling New Division Into Path Of Offensive

Biggest Russian Tank Is Wrecked; Yanks 51 Miles From Manchuria

BULLETIN

LAKE SUCCESS, Nov. 24 (AP).—The United Nations unexpectedly announced tonight that the Security Council will meet at 3 p. m. Saturday to take up both the Formosan and the Korean problems. It had previously been reported the Council would not meet before Tuesday.

TOKYO (Saturday) Nov. 25 (AP).—The United Nations offensive to end the Korean war smacked into Red resistance for the first time today but kept rolling on toward the border of Manchuria.

On every sector of the snowy northwest front but one, U. N. forces continued their generally unopposed advance for 4 to 10 miles Friday.

Their thrusts carried to Chongju and put them within 51 to 60 miles of the Yalu river boundary and the Reds' most prized hydroelectric plants.

The Republic of Korea (ROK) First Division ran into trouble this morning on its way north to the big Suiho power dam on the Yalu. It was hit by a counter-attacking Red Regiment—about 3000 men.

The ROK First was knocked back a half mile in cold, early morning darkness. Then the Reds struck again. The ROKs fell back another mile.

But the ROK First had its own counter-thrust rolling by 8 a. m., the hour when other U. N. forces jumped off to resume the advance, a First Corps spokesman said.

MacArthur Summary

Before the Red counterblow at the ROK First was reported General MacArthur issued a morning war summary for the first time in months to announce that the U. N. 100,000-man offensive was advancing against light opposition.

MacArthur's summary covered action Friday when the United States Twenty-fourth Division paced the attack by gaining 10 miles and reaching Chongju, highway hub near the west coast.

On the advance the Twenty-fourth destroyed a Josef Stalin III tank—the first of these encountered in the Korean war. The Stalin III is believed to be the heaviest and latest model built by Russia.

It is newer than the Soviet medium T-34 used in Korea.

The spokesman said he did not know why the troops would have destroyed such a valuable piece of ordnance and said he suspected it was set afire by bazooka fire.

There were signs of more possible trouble for U. N. troops. Air observers reported a Communist division—about 8000 men—moving south toward the advancing Allies on the northwest front.

The Americans entered Sinuiju on the main west coastal road without opposition.

Sinuiju, 51 miles northwest of Chongju, is on the Yalu River power site boundary between Korea and Chinese Communist Manchuria.

MacArthur, himself has warned, however, that "new Red armies" are in the path of the advancing

Flying Ice Cubes Add to Mystery In British Skies

LONDON, Nov. 24 (AP)—Now it's flying ice cubes.

A block of ice a foot square hurtled through the asbestos roof of a garage in suburban Wandsworth today. Scotland Yard was called in.

"There was a noise like a terrific explosion," reported George Cooper, the garage watchman. "The asbestos roof caved in. We were all covered with dust and pieces of asbestos."

Said a weather expert:

"I do not think a lump of ice that size can be a normal weather phenomenon."

Two weeks ago in Exmoor, farmers found lumps of ice weighing 12 to 14 pounds. One farmer found a sheep dead, with a deep wound in its neck. Next to it was a giant ice cube.

U. S. Will Seek Peace After Reaching Yalu

Gen. Douglas MacArthur has not the slightest intention of stationing large American forces along the Yalu River boundary of Korea.

On the contrary, it was learned here yesterday, he is confident of pushing up to the river quickly, and then announcing that he has carried out the United Nations' orders.

As soon as the U. N. forces reach the Yalu boundary—assuming no major resistance or other complications—the United States will press for a political settlement through the U. N. with the Communist Chinese.

Such a settlement will be intended to assure them of the security of their interests in Manchuria, just across the river, and in the power plants on the Korean side which supply Manchurian cities.

Officials here conceded that there was "considerable risk" in MacArthur's decision to push ahead to the river, but they felt his long-standing orders left him no alternative.

Not Tied to Envoys' Arrival

They also insisted that there was no connection between the timing of MacArthur's new drive and the arrival in New York of a Communist Chinese delegation. The timing of the offensive was said to have been a military decision entirely, not in any way based on political consultations or political considerations.

As for the Chinese delegation, one high official here recalled that the date of its arrival has been indefinite, and he implied that the decision to attack had been taken long before the Chinese emissaries left Peiping. The same official said he knew of no contacts with the Chinese Communists at any "level" other than at Lake Success, the U. N. headquarters.

So many U. N. members are anxious to make contact with the Chinese delegation in New York that something like a priority system has had to be arranged.

By common consent, the first to see the new arrivals was Trygve Lie, the Secretary-General, who visited them yesterday. Over the weekend Ales Bebler, the Yugoslav president of the Security Council, is expected to see the Chinese and discuss the presentation of their complaint against alleged American "aggression" in Formosa.

Other Representatives

Next in the line will be representatives of the Indian, British and other governments which have recognized the Chinese Communist regime and maintain diplomatic relations with it.

By that time, it is hoped here, the offensive to the Yalu will be over, and members of the United States delegation can talk to the Chinese. Ambassador Warren R. Austin, who will be in charge of the American case in the Security Council, has indicated that he will not talk to the Peiping emissaries while Chinese are firing at American and other United Nations troops.

The American view is that if all goes well with MacArthur's offensive it will be much easier to wind up the entire Korean war and get to work through the United Nations on the political and economic problems of reconstruction.

Die in Action

Two District Men Killed In Korea

Two Washington soldiers, previously reported missing, were killed in action in Korea, the Department of Defense has announced.

Corpl. Robert E. Cauthers, 21, grandson of Mrs. Nannie B. Ellington of 814 G st. ne., was reported missing on July 26.

Mrs. Ellington was notified by the Defense Department on November 12 that Cauthers died in action July 5. A neighborhood buddy of Cauthers, Sergt. Gene Hall of 1514 V st. se., wrote his family that the two were separated in Japan a few days before Cauthers was killed. They entered the Army together in 1948, and served in the Twenty-fifth Infantry Division.

Surviving are Cauthers' grandmother; his father, Edward J. Cauthers of the G st. address, and a brother, Edward John Cauthers, jr., who was called to duty with the Marine reserves shortly after his brother was listed as missing.

Corpl. Charles E. Griffis, 21, a son of Mrs. Hugh R. Titlow, of 4203 Van Buren st., University Park, Md., died in action on July 11, according to notification received by his family last Saturday.

Previously he had been reported as missing in action on July 11. His mother said she received a letter from him on July 3 in which he inclosed $550 so that she could "buy something for the house."

Griffis entered the Army in 1948 and fought in Korea with the Twenty-fifth Division, Thirty-fifth Infantry Regiment, his mother said.

Besides his mother, Griffis is survived by a brother, Ralph Griffis, of China Lake, Calif.; his grandmother and great-grandmother and a stepsister, Sharon Titlow, all of the Van Buren st. address.

A former Alexandrian, 1st Lieut. William J. Simpson, jr. was reported wounded in action. While stationed at Fort Belvoir from May, 1948 to July, 1950, he and his wife lived at 906 Prince st. and later at 318 Duke st., Alexandria. Notification was made to a Los Angeles address.

So. Koreans Execute 322 for Aid to Enemy

SEOUL, Korea, Nov. 24 (U.P.)—The Republic of Korea has executed 322 of 877 persons convicted of collaboration with the Communists the government announced tonight.

The Seoul district court sentenced 233 to death. The others were tried in two other courts.

The announcement said 14,441 alleged collaborators, 3820 of them women, had been arrested as of November 2. Of these, 5677 had been released.

U. N. forces. Apparently the U. N. commander referred to recent reinforcements for the Communists in the northwest.

But so far the U. N. drive had not run up against any of the new defense lines believed to have been prepared by 100,000 Chinese and Korean Reds in the snow covered mountains.

The U. S. Twenty-fourth Division pointed for Siniju, the heavily bombed border gateway through which the Chinese Communists have funneled heavy concentrations into North Korea. The twenty-fourth had gone over this same road to within 14 miles of the Yalu four weeks ago before it pulled back in the face of a Chinese Red counter offensive.

The South Korean First Division—just to the east of the Twenty-fourth headed for the great Suiho power plant on the Yalu about 60 miles north of its leading elements.

A third spearhead was aimed directly northward on the road to Chosan, where the South Korean Sixth Division reached the border last month and then retreated. This spearhead was made up of two United States Twenty-fifth Division columns led by tanks.

Other Eighth Army forces thrust northeastward in the Chongchon River valley to protect the flank of the border-driving spearheads.

On the northeast front, South Korean troops seized hills overlooking the port of Chongjin, 55 miles south of the Siberian-Korean border. The gain was overshadowed, however, by the appearance of two new Chinese Communist divisions on the northeast front.

MacArthur flew to the northwest front and directed the jump-off of the general assault early Friday. En route back to his Tokyo headquarters, he flew over North Korean Red territory south of the Yalu River for a first-hand look at Sinuiju, the Suiho power plant, the Kanggye area where the North Koreans are believed to have their headquarters, the U. S. Manchurian border position at Hyesanjin and the general northeast front.

The U. N. commander had said in a special communique the general assault "if successful" should for all practical purposes.

1. End the war.
2. Restore peace and unity to Korea.
3. Enable the prompt withdrawal of United Nations military forces.
4. Permit complete assumption by the Korean people and nation of full sovereignty and international equality.

It is these things "for which we fight," the general said.

MacArthur called the general assault the start of the United Nations' "decisive effort" against "the new Red armies" operating in North Korea. He did not explain what he meant by "new" Red armies. His briefing officers said only that "it would not be advisable for us to expose what we know about the enemy."

The order for the drive shattered all frontline and headquarters rumors of negotiated peace. The peace rumors began flying Thursday in the light of continued Red pullbacks and Chinese Communist release of 27 American prisoners of war Tuesday. Thirty more United States prisoners were released Friday on the northwest front, just before the new big offensive began.

MacArthur observed that the big push began with troop morale high, bolstered by "the justice of our cause and promise of early completion of our mission."

As he left the front, the U. N. military chief told his field generals:

"Tell the boys when they reach the Yalu they are going home. I want to make good on my statement that they are going to eat Christmas dinner at home."

It seemed doubtful, however, that many American troops could be moved back to the United States by Christmas this year, even if they started now.

MacArthur laid out his warending strategy for all to see in his special communique announcing the big push.

"The United Nations massive compression envelopment in North Korea against the new Red armies operating there is now approaching its decisive effort," he began.

He envisioned pinching the Red armies between two great forces of allied arms — one from the northwest and one from the northeast.

The Air Forces, which he called the "isolating component of the pincer," have for three weeks so successfully blasted Red supply lines from the north that "further reinforcement therefrom has been sharply curtailed and essential supplies markedly limited."

Associated Press Correspondent Stan Swinton on the northeast front reported that news of the Eighth Army offensive was "greeted with jubilation" there. There was no indication that the United States Tenth Corps yet had orders to veer west in support of the Eighth Army.

Forces on that front have been driving north and east for more than a month.

On the far right of the northeast front, a South Korean regiment of the Capital Division left the coastal highway and sent a spearhead up onto hills 3 miles west of Chongjin's western outskirts, It reported little resistance.

Another regiment of the Republican Capital Division continued moving up the coastal road toward the city from the south. It was last reported about 7 miles south of Chongjin.

The appearance of a new Chinese Communist division, the 126th, 40 miles west of the important allied supply port of Hungnam, posed a threat to supply lines to the entire northeast front.

The South Korean Twenty-sixth Regiment reported it was fighting the 126th at Incho. The Red division apparently had been shifted to the southwest secretly from the Pujon reservoir front.

Another new Chinese Red division, the Eighty-ninth, was identified in front of U. S. Marine lines west of the Changjin reservoir. No contact had been made with it, a briefing officer said.

The division apparently was moved up to save the last of three main roads leading from Manchuria to the Changjin reservoir. U. S. Marines already have cut two of the roads.

The U. S. Seventh Division, already at the border in the northeast, expanded its Yalu River bridgehead to 8 miles—from Hyesanjin southwest to Sindong. The Seventh met no resistance.

The South Korean First Division, driving for the Suiho power plant, began to surround Taechon, road center 50 air miles, but about 60 road miles from the great power project. One reason the Chinese sent troops into Korea was to protect Suiho, which supplies some Manchurian cities.

Chinese Reds Free 30 More Wounded GIs

By Don Whitehead

NORTHWEST FRONT, Korea, Nov. 24 (AP).—Chinese Communist troops, carrying out an apparent "peace" offensive, today freed 30 more wounded Americans in front of United States battle lines.

It was the second incident of its kind in as many days. It brought to 57 the number of American prisoners of war liberated since Tuesday. So far only the names of 15 have been released.

The new group of 30, shedding tears of joy, included one captain and three lieutenants. All but three were wounded so badly they had to be carried on litters.

The men were members of the United States Eighth Cavalry Regiment. They had been ambushed when Chinese Communist troops snapped an American drive for the Manchurian border with a surprise offensive in late October.

The captives were collected Thursday night and taken to a village near the American lines. There the 27 wounded were placed in a Korean house by their guard. Two of the able-bodied Americans were instructed to deliver a letter to United States lines.

The letter told the United States commander to send one ambulance jeep with no arms and no escort to the village. The jeep was to fly a large flag on its right fender.

The letter said the ambulance jeep would be permitted to shuttle the freed prisoners back to American lines, a few at a time.

The two Americans bearing the letter met a United States Twenty-fifth Division task force as they walked toward the lines. The task force swept on ahead and found the remaining prisoners.

The liberated men were taken to a clearing station where reporters were forbidden to see them. Later today they were taken by ambulance to a rear area and then removed by plane to a hospital.

One of the liberated prisoners told officers he was captured near Unsan after a three-day fight with the Chinese and Korean Reds.

North Korean troops held him with other Americans for four days. Then Chinese Communists took charge of the prisoners.

Unlike the first group of 27 released yesterday, these men were not given political indoctrination lectures, officers said.

There was no immediate indication when the names of the liberated Americans would be released.

Peiping Delegates Use Soft Words

LAKE SUCCESS, Nov. 24 (AP). A soft-spoken delegation of Chinese Communists arrived for the first time at the United Nations today.

The envoys informed Secretary-General Trygve Lie they are ready to go ahead at once in the Security Council with Peiping's charges that the United States committed aggression against Formosa.

The Asembly's Political Committee, meanwhile, is beginning discussion on similar charges, brought by the Soviet Union but first raised by Peiping. The committee decided this afternoon to invite the Chinese Communists to take part in its discussion, but U. N. officials said new credentials would be needed if this delegation entered the committee debate. Some delegates expected the credentials would be dispatched immediately.

The vote was 30 in favor of the invitation, 8 opposed and 22 abstaining. The United States abstained. Several delegates voting for the invitation served notice it did not constitute recognition. Only 17 of the 60 U. N. members have recognized the Red regime.

The committee adjourned until 10:45 a. m. Monday before beginning debate on the charges. United States Delegate John Foster Dulles accused Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Jacob A. Malik of a trick in demanding an invitation for the Chinese Communists and then saying the committee would have to wait until Peiping arranged a delegation.

Dulles said the United States is not arguing with Communist China, which it does not recognize, and is prepared to debate only with the Soviet Union, which sponsored the Peiping charges. Malik is expected to lead off the verbal fireworks Monday.

Wu Hsiu-chuan, chief of the Russian and Asian division of the Chinese Communist Foreign Office and a Russian-speaking official, headed a group of four Chinese Reds closeted with Lie for 40 minutes. The five other members of the delegation remained at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, resting from their long plane ride from Peiping.

WU would not talk with reporters except to say he had come to present his credentials.

It was learned later that WU handed Lie a white paper with Chinese characters attesting to the credentials of the envoy. He was reported to have told Lie he was ready to go ahead at any time with the Security Council case.

Arrangements are expected to be made for the Council to meet Monday or Tuesday.

Lie said the atmosphere in his office was cordial during the visit. It was said that most of the talk concerned living arrangements for the delegation, office space, transportation and other housekeeping details.

The delegation of nine flew in from London at 6:15 a. m. and was greeted by a large crowd of reporters, photographers, United Nations Secretariat members ond high delegates of the five Soviet bloc countries, headed by Malik.

"Ladies and gentlemen:

"On the instruction of the Central People's Government of the People. Republic of China, I am here to attend the meeting of the United Nations Security Council which will discuss the charge of armed aggression against Taiwan. I hope that this charge brought by the Central People's Government of the People's Republic of China will receive just treatment in the Security Council. If so, it will be helpful to peace and security in the Pacific and in Asia. This is the desire of the Central People's Government of the People's Republic of China and the 475 million Chinese people.

"A profound friendship has always existed between the Chinese people and the American people. I wish to avail myself of this opportunity to convey my greetings to the peace-loving people in the United States."

It was learned that the Indian delegation, headed by Sir B. N. Rau, sent a letter by messenger to the delegation informing Wu that the Indian delegates would like to call on him. India has recognized Communist China but has become worried by Peiping's decision to invade Tibet. There was no answer late in the day.

The question of Tibet was shelved for the remainder of this session at a meeting of the 14-nation Steering Committee. Without opposition, the committee decided to postpone, without setting a new date, a proposal by El Salvador for a full airing of the Tibet case.

The Jamsaheb of Nawanagar, Indian delegate and chairman of the Assembly's Financial Committee, told the Steering Committee the Chinese Communist soldiers apparently had stopped their advance on Lhasa, capital of Tibet, and that India believed there still was a chance the affair could be settled peaceably and honorably.

Asked by Truman

Rockefeller To Outline Point 4 Aid

President Truman yesterday formally appointed Nelson D. Rockefeller as chairman of the Advisory Board on International Development, and bade him return with recommendations on carrying out the "Point Four" program by next February.

Rockefeller

The President also counseled Rockefeller, former United States Coordinator of Latin-American Affairs, to examine, with his Advisory Board, the recommendations contained in the recent Gordon Gray report relating to development of backward areas.

Mr. Truman asked for recommendations from the group on "desirable plans to accomplish with maximum dispatch and effectiveness the broad objectives and policies of the Point Four program," and on the types and size of projects that should be undertaken.

Shipments To Red China Are Disclosed

By The Associated Press

Senator O'Conor (D., Md.) said yesterday investigation has disclosed "huge" shipments of scrap rubber, steel and oil to Communist China from West Coast ports and from Japan since the start of the Korean war.

In a statement summarizing the shipments, O'Conor said the full details were being laid before Secretary of Defense Marshall with a request that he "consider the possible dangers involved."

O'Conor is acting chairman of a Senate commerce subcommittee inquiring into shipments of strategic materials to Red China. He has accused the Commerce Department of failing to plug loopholes in export regulations to halt such trade.

Investigation by the subcommittee, O'Conor said, has revealed the following shipments from ports in United States-occupied Japan to Taku Bar, a North China port, between the start of the Korean war on June 25 and November 23:

A total of 17,746,000 pounds of steel products, including steel plates, black seamless pipe, round wire bars, galvanized iron sheets, plates and bar, coiled wire rods, plate cuttings, mild steel plates and angles, and mild steel channels.

A total of 20,000 pounds of scrap rubber and old tires; five fire engines with pumps and one foam-quenching truck; 12 tons of transformers; 10 tons of compressors, and 55 tons of motors.

In the same period, O'Conor said the following articles were shipped from West Coast ports in the United States to Taku Bar:

A total of 7,900,000 pounds of rubber scrap, tires and tubes; 758,000 pounds of steel products, consisting of steel plates, tinplate waste, used steel sheets and steel sheets waste, and 323,000 pounds of lubricating and cylinder oil.

The Senate investigators have made it plain the Commerce Department has not heard the last about export controls which permit the shipment of some goods to Communist China.

Chairman O'Conor announced his group's task will be a continuing one "so the Communists will not be given any aid from this country."

Ex-Tito Aide Freed After Confessing Moscow Dealings

BELGRADE, Nov. 24. (U.P.)—Sreten Zujovic, formerly the No. 2 leader in Yugoslavia, has recanted and confessed to dealings with the Soviet embassy in Belgrade and has been released from prison, an official announcement said tonight.

The former Yugoslav leader, who was a member of the Yugoslav Politbureau, minister of finance, and a colonel general in the army, said he fell under the influence of Anatoli Lavrentiev, former Soviet ambassador to Yugoslavia who now is a deputy Soviet minister in charge of Eastern European affairs.

Zujovic said "I am a practical man and not a theoretician and therefore there were many things at that time I did not understand and they deluded me."

Zujovic, known as "Blackie," was the most popular Serb Communist. His confession and release is considered the greatest domestic political triumph of Tito in his fight to maintain the unity of his Community Party in its ideological struggle with the Kremlin.

Tito Given 16 Million in Stopgap Aid

Following the signing of a food relief agreement with Yugoslavia, President Truman yesterday notified Congress that he is allocating 16 million dollars of Mutual Defense Assistance Program funds for the drought-stricken nation.

The President wrote key Congressional leaders, stating that the money was needed as part of the immediate famine-prevention program, pending action by Congress to appropriate more than 40 million dollars in addition for food later this winter.

The use of the MDAP money was made possible by an agreement signed in Belgrade on November 21 by United States Ambassador George V. Allen and Yugoslav First Deputy Foreign Minister Leo Mates.

Although the agreement is nowhere near as inclusive as those effected with the North Atlantic Treaty nations, nevertheless it commits Tito to use the food to prevent weakening of Yugoslav defenses, and to defend itself against aggression by Russia or its satellites.

The Yugoslav government also agreed not to transfer to another country any food it receives; to facilitate the provision of strategic raw materials to the United States, and, apparently, to permit American observers to watch over the distribution of the aid that will be sent.

With this agreement in hand, President Truman was able to avail himself of a provision in the MDAP law authorizing aid for military purposes to any European nation whose defense or security is seriously affected and whose location makes it important to the defense of the North Atlantic partners.

Mr. Truman told the Congressional leaders that the drought in Yugoslavia, the resulting crop failure and impending famine "dangerously weaken" its ability to defend itself against aggression, "for, among other consequences, it imperils the combat effectiveness of the Yugoslav armed forces."

These consist of 32 army divisions, the largest non-Communist military force in Europe.

In addition to the MDAP money, the immediate, emergency program will be financed by about 11.5 million dollars of ECA funds, and 6 million dollars from the Export-Import Bank.

Korean Envoy to Speak To Knights of Columbus

A Holy Year Mass of Thanksgiving dedicated to Pope Pius XII will be attended by the Keane Council of the Knights of Columbus and their families Sunday at 8:15 a. m., at the Church of the Immaculate Conception, 8th and N sts. nw. The Rev. John O'Connor, chaplain of the council, will offer the mass, at which holy communion will be received in a body.

Korean Ambassador John Chang will address the group at the communion breakfast in Knights of Columbus Hall, 918 10th st. nw. following the service.

Marshall Hits 'Feast, Famine' Policy of U. S. Defense Plans

FORT BENNING, Ga., Nov. 24 (AP).—Secretary of Defense Marshall tonight called for an "enduring" system of national defense instead of the "feast and famine" military policies of the past.

Marshall recalled the swift demobilization of America's vast military machine after World War II. In 1947, he said, only one and one-third infantry divisions were available in the United States for military duty, yet as Secretary of State he was being "urged from many sides to pour it on the Soviets and give them hell."

In a speech prepared for delivery at a dinner honoring Erle Cocke, jr., new national commander of the American Legion, General Marshall expressed confidence that Cocke favors an enduring defense system and that the Legion will line up solidly behind him.

He said the need is for "a system that will not collapse at every change of wind and temperature, a system that will keep us prepared for any emergency, yet will not sap the economic strength which is of maximum importance to the democratic people of the entire world."

Marshall said the history of national defense in the United States has been a succession of feasts and famines that have followed each other in demoralizing sequence.

"Speaking frankly," he declared, "I fear that we have given a demonstration somewhat of emotional instability."

After every situation in which America's unpreparedness has cost precious lives and resources, the Secretary said, there always has been a drive to find scapegoats to shoulder the blame. But he said the basic error has always been with the American people themselves.

Marshall continued:

"The fault has been their refusal to sanction an enduring posture of defense that would discourage aggression, and if war came, would reduce the casualties, the sacrifices, the excessive costs, and the needless waste."

Earlier in the day Marshall spoke at a homecoming celebration for Commander Cocke at Dawson, Ga. He said it was a "compelling necessity" to permit Germany to take part in the defense of Western Europe.

14 Germans Freed

LANDSBERG, Germany, Nov. 24 (U.P.).—Fourteen German war criminals, including nine serving life terms, were released from Landsberg Prison today after an Army review board recommended that their sentences be reduced to "time served."

French Deny Violation of China Border

SAIGON, Viet Nam, Indo-China, Nov. 24 (AP)—Official French sources, denying a Chinese Communist protest that French forces had violated the Chinese border, said today the Peiping charge may be a pretext for further Chinese intervention in Indo-China.

Gen. Marcel Carpentier, French military commander-in-chief in the Far East, said: "We have no idea where or how French troops could have crossed the border. On the other hand, there are numerous examples of border violations by Chinese Communists."

The Chinese charge, broadcast yesterday by the Peiping radio, accused France of "armed provocation and constant bombing and strafing" along the border between China and Indo-China.

The charges were similar to those made by the Chinese against the United States forces before Chinese troops entered the fighting in North Korea.

(In Paris, the French Parliament has indorsed Premier Rene Pleven's pledge to consult with the Western democracies on what to do if Chinese Communists attack the French in Indo-China.)

A French column driving to the relief of the besieged northeast frontier post of Tan Mai, was reported to have shaken off a Viet Minh attack but had not succeeded in reaching the encircled post, 15 miles west of Moncay. Tan Mai is 6 miles from the section where the Chinese charged French violation of the frontier.

The French now hold a 60-mile line along the Chinese frontier from the port of Moncay to Dinh Lap. The line runs parallel to and generally 12 miles from the border. The border zone is rugged mountainous territory and the French have made only short patrols into it, official sources said.

U. S. Seventh Army Reactivated As Allies Bolster Defenses

FRANKFURT, Germany, Nov. 24 (AP).—American and British military men moved today to strengthen western Europe's defenses despite Allied and German political wrangling over West German participation.

These developments highlighted the row over defense plans:

At Heidelberg, the wartime United States Seventh Army was reactivated under command of Lieut. Gen. Manton Eddy.

In the British zone, authorities announced two new airfields are to be built west of the Rhine River near the Dutch border and a new Belgian division is being assigned to Germany.

In Berlin, 300 more United States infantrymen arrived to bolster the Soviet-surrounded garrison.

In Kiel, United States High Commissioner John J. McCloy told the Germans the United States is making tremendous sacrifices, that Germany must face the defense issue and "no one can preserve your freedoms for you."

McCloy in taking the rearmament issue directly to the Germans, belied Washington statements which belittled the effect of recent Socialist election victories. He was on a speaking tour of the port cities of Kiel, Hamburg and Bremen. American and British officials here have been frank in their worry over the anti-rearmament feeling sweeping Germany.

Reactivating the Seventh Army changed the policy of American forces in Europe from police duties to a defense mission.

The Seventh Army, which won fame invading southern France in World War II, will form the organization into which increasing American strength in Europe will be fitted.

It is starting with the equivalent of two divisions. These are the First Infantry and an armored constabulary force which is expected to be reorganized into an armored division.

The occupation powers have agreed to wipe out zonal borders for defense purposes in West Germany and wholesale troop movements into new positions are expected shortly.

American troops are expected to take up positions in part of the French zone. French troops will move into some American areas.

In the British zone, other strengthening steps were taken. At Duesseldorf, it was announced housing would be needed near the Ruhr for the new Belgian Division.

Military moves made it obvious to observers that American and British military men were basing their first defense line along the Rhine, with its main bases on the west bank.

It was expected the defense lines would be moved gradually east, depending on the number of troops available.

Adenauer Proposes 'Security Treaty'

BONN, Nov. 24 (NYHT).—Chancellor Konrad Adenauer of West Germany disclosed today that he has proposed to the Western Allies that a "security treaty" replace the Allied occupation statute to "give the German people some visible sign that they will be free or close to freedom when they are asked to raise army contingents in defense of freedom."

Adenauer said he put this and a number of other proposals for further liberalization and relaxation of Allied controls before the Allied High Commission last week.

11 Plead Innocent To Contempt Charges

By The Associated Press

Eleven persons accused of contempt of Congress for refusing to answer questions of the House Un-American Activities Committee pleaded innocent yesterday.

They included a former atomic scientist, a West Coast heiress and seven officials and active members of the United Electrical Radio and Machine Workers.

Ten were arraigned and released on bail.

Dr. Clarence F. Hiskey entered his plea yesterday afternoon before District Judge Burnita S. Matthews, who had received the pleas of the others earlier in the day.

Hiskey, a chemist, did research at the University of Chicago in connection with development of the atomic bomb. He was suspended this week from his job as a professor at Polytechnic Institute of Brooklyn.

The left-wing United Electrical Workers commented at length. It called the indictment of its officers and active members a "union-busting" drive.

One of the 12 persons indicted by a grand jury last Monday for failure to answer questions during the Unamerican Activities Committee's investigation of communism still is to be arraigned. He is Frank Hashmall of Cincinnati.

Charles B. Murray, an assistant United States District Attorney told reporters that Hashmall has not been found although a warrant for his arrest was issued several days ago.

Bonds of $1000 and $1500 were posted. Judge Matthews gave the defense until December 19 to enter motions.

Arraigned persons included Philip Bart, general manager of the Daily Worker, Communist newspaper published in New York, and Louise Bransten Berman, New York City, termed by committee members a financial "angel" for Communist causes.

Seven others arraigned were officials and members of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers. They are:

Julius Emspak, secretary-treasurer; James J. Matles, director of organization; Thomas Quinn, Pittsburgh; Talmadge Raley, Cincinnati; Esther Tice, Cincinnati; Thomas J. Fitzpatrick, Pittsburgh; Frank Panzino, Pittsburgh.

The other defendant arraigned was Pasquale L. J. Branca, former Washington school teacher.

The grand jury has before it complaints concerning other witnesses accused of failing to answer questions of congressional groups. The penalty for contempt of Congress is a maximum of a year in prison and $1000 fine on each count.

Volunteer Jobs

CD Work Barred for Health Dept.

Daniel L. Seckinger, District Public Health director, yesterday told the Health Department's 600 employes not to volunteer for outside civil defense jobs—because all will be needed for health work.

His meorandum to bureau chiefs, said one of Seckinger's assistants, means department employes should not sign up as block wardens or auxiliary policemen. If the District is attacked, they will be needed on medical or public health jobs soon to be assigned.

Seckinger, who is head of the civil defense medical and health division, also asked employes to recruit trained persons among their friends for the "thousands" of volunteer positions the division must fill.

Volunteers will be needed for the following work, he said: All types of medical occupations, nurses and nurses aides, medical corpsmen, home nursing aides, educators, food technicians, sanitarians, laboratory workers of all kinds, nutritionists, child care specialists, maternity care assistants, engineers, clerical assistants.

Specific needs in each category will be announced soon, Seckinger said.

County Chest Reaches $19,698

Community Chest contributions in Prince Georges County have reached $19,698.40—or 37.9 percent of the 1951 campaign goal—Chest officials announced yesterday.

A total of $17,278.90 has been received from business solicitations and $2419.50 from special solicitations toward the $52,000 quota. The drive began October 10.

Aero Club to Hear Lord Tedder

Lord Tedder, chief of the British Air Staff, will be principal speaker at the annual Wright Day dinner of the Aero Club of Washington on Saturday, December 16, at the Hotel Statler.

A member of the Military Committee of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, Lord Tedder formerly served as Deputy Supreme Commander of SHAEF, second in command to General Dwight D. Eisenhower.

At the dinner, the 1950 Wright Memorial Trophy will be presented to Grover Loening, first aeronautical engineer of what is now the United States Air Force. He will receive the award, which in 1949 went to Charles A. Lindbergh, for "public service of enduring value to aviation in the United States."

Mahon Terms Reserve Plan A 'Disgrace'

The United States military reserve program was denounced yesterday by Representative Mahon (D., Tex.) as a "disgrace and a farce."

The chairman of the House Armed Services Appropriations Subcommittee made the statement in announcing his committee will meet next Wednesday to consider raising additional billions of dollars for defense.

Back at his office after an inspection of military installations throughout the Nation, Mahon also declared that the United States "can not afford to be trapped" into an all-out war with Communist China.

"The reserve program is a disgrace and a farce and must be revamped," he said in his statement.

"We gave the Department of Defense more money for the reserve program than was requested, but it takes more than money to produce a good reserve program."

While commenting that some real progress has been made in defense preparations, Mahon said "We are a long way from being prepared for all-out war" and that additional funds would have to be provided for defense expansion.

"As to so-called push-button war," he continued, "we are not prepared for that and I do not believe we ever will be. But under the stimulus of Korea, the Defense establishment is rapidly pushing ahead in the field of new techniques and more modern weapons.

"All-out war with Red China is unthinkable. It would deplete and exhaust us, heavily involve us in Asia and tend to give Russia a free hand in western Europe.

"Regardless of developments, we can not afford to be trapped into all-out war with Red China."

Mahon said that several billion dollars additional funds will have to be provided for defense in December, but "we can not give the department a blank check."

Truman Calls 'Hill' Parley

followed by a general party conference next week.

Millikin said the Senate Republican Policy Committee, headed by Senator Taft, will meet at 3 p. m. Monday for a GOP preview of the work of the session. He tentatively plans to call a general Senate Republican conference Tuesday, he said.

Across the Capitol the House Ways and Means Committee meanwhile directed Colin F. Stam, its chief tax expert, to prepare a tentative draft of a tax bill for consideration of the committee Monday. Stam was told to put in it all of the points on which the Treasury and congressional experts can agree.

The tax-making unit, torn by party lines on the excess profits tax approach, spent the morning in closed session questioning congressional and Treasury experts. Later the Democratic members huddled with Chairman Robert L. Doughton (D., N. C.) but reached no major conclusions. Their preannounced goal is to try to bring out a bill by the close of this week.

House Republicans, however, have been conducting a running fire attack on the Administration's 75 percent excess profits tax proposal and demanding "clarification" of the so-called congressional "mandate" to bring out an excess profits tax bill. Some of them have urged that the decision go over until next session.

Millikin's statement yesterday in support of enactment of the tax this session therefore came as a surprise. The Colorado Republican, just reelected to a six-year Senate term, is ranking Republican member of the Senate Finance Committee. He told reporters he was chief author of the so-called excess profits tax mandate and intends personally to fully comply with it.

"I am completely committed to try to get an excess profits tax bill passed this session, and to try to make it retroactive to either October or July," he said.

Millikin conceded, however, that time might run out before the Senate can pass such a bill. Discussing the House controversy over what was meant by the "mandate," he said the directive for an excess profits tax was clear, but it did not bar other forms of taxes in addition to the profits levy.

In slapping sharply at Acheson, for his jibe about Taft and general handling of foreign policy, Millikin said he was not demanding Acheson's resignation.

"I hold the President responsible for his Cabinet," he said. "If the Cabinet behaves well, he should get the credit. If it behaves badly, he is to blame. I think the State Department is behaving badly."

A reporter asked "in what respect" it had behaved badly.

"In respect to the foreign policy leading to the Korean war, leading to the necessity for preparedness, and leading to the need for new taxes," he said.

The Coloradan also hit at Acheson's statement that no group is worthy of its leaders if they "want to tear up the very roots of the policy on which the future of the world depends."

"I would pull all the weeds out to see how much they've grown during the night," said Millikin.

"What do you mean by 'weeds'," a reporter asked.

"Bad policies," replied Millikin.

He said the Administration would have to show an "honest desire for a bi-partisan approach" if it wants Republican cooperation.

He said the Administration can show that desire only by "primary consultation" of Republicans and sounding out public opinion in advance of a foreign policy move. The result would be "a common denominator policy" that Republicans could accept, he said.

Millikin declined to speculate on the membership of the new Republican Policy Committee to be appointed in January, except for its chairman. He predicted Taft would be reelected to that post.

Nor would he take sides in the contest for the new Republican seat on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, jointly sought by Senator Wayne Morse (R., Oreg.) and Senator William F. Knowland (R., Calif.).

Engineer's Failure Blamed in Wreck

Associated Press WIREPHOTO
WILLIAM MURPHY
was the motorman of the Long Island Railroad train that stalled near Kew Gardens, Queens, and was rammed by a speeding express train killing 77 persons and injuring more than 300 others.

NEW YORK, Nov. 24 (AP).—Preliminary investigation shows "human failure" caused the Long Island railroad wreck on Thanksgiving eve in which 77 persons died, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey said today.

He said findings so far indicated the express which plowed into the rear of a stalled train had passed through one warning signal and one stop signal at full speed of between 60 and 65 miles per hour.

The railroad itself issued a statement saying the engineer of the express was going faster than regulations permitted.

Presence of the train in the block ahead, the statement said, required the following train to stop, then proceed at a speed not exceeding 15 miles per hour.

"The evidence indicates that after stopping at the signal Train No. 174 (the express) then proceeded eastward, attaining a speed greater than 15 miles per hour, beyond the margin of safety."

"Brakes on both trains and the signal system were in proper operating condition," the railroad said.

Dewey summoned the court-appointed trustees to an emergency conference. They talked with him about 20 minutes then left.

Later, Dewey said the State and the cities served by the Long Island would back Nassau County Executive J. Russell Sprague in a Federal Court ouster move against the pair Monday.

The Governor said he told the trustees of the ouster move and urged them to resign before Monday "so swift action could be taken to install a completely new management." He did not say how the trustees took the suggestion.

The trustees are David E. Smucker and Hunter L. Delatour, already the target of removal proceedings being planned in Nassau County, where many Long Island commuters live.

The Governor and the State Public Service Commission opened one of a half dozen investigations being made of the disaster which occurred near Kew Gardens.

The toll included 332 injured, 15 of them critically. It was feared the death list would increase.

Dewey and Mayor Vincent Impellitteri flew home from vacations in Florida and Cuba to head separate investigations.

In Washington the Interstate Commerce Commission announced it would open an inquiry in New York Saturday.

The wreck, second major disaster on the road in a year for a total death toll off 110, aroused public indignation.

Charles P. Sullivan, Queens County district attorney, who conducted one investigation, called the bankrupt Long Island "this Death Valley railroad" and a ride on it "an open invitation to the morgue."

Dewey said his investigation had "just started."

"Whatever the causes, human or mechanical, the situation on the Long Island Railroad is utterly intolerable,' 'he declared.

"I propose to take every step necessary and possible to make it a safe railroad at the quicket possible moment."

Mayor Impellitteri met with Robert H. Moses, city coordinator; Col. Sidney H. Bingham, chairman of the board of transportation, and Maurice J. Fitzgerald, borough president of Queens.

During the afternoon the mayor called upon Dewey to bring together "all the overlapping and conflicting interests' 'in a reorganization of the railroad.

He said he wanted an acceptable plan of reorganization, reconstruction, safe operation and refinancing.

"The complete, drastic, honest and uncompromising reorganization of this Long Island Railroad is long overdue," he remarked.

Tax Probes Revealed by Sen. Kefauver

By The Associated Press

Senator Kefauver (D., Tenn.), head of the Senate Crime Investigating Committee, said yesterday the Internal Revenue Department is investigating the income tax returns of Mickey Cohen of Hollywood and three other "big time West Coast gamblers" for evidence of any tax evasion.

Kefauver told a news conference Treasury intelligence agents have "about completed" their checking of Cohen's returns and those of Emilio Georgetti, of Las Vegas, Nev.; are checking those of Sam F. Termini, Hillsboro, Calif.; and that an inquiry into the returns of Elmer (Bones) Remmer, San Francisco, is in its final stages. The agents' report on Remmer, Kefauver said, has been submitted to the Revenue Department here to determine if prosecution should be ordered.

Kefauver also said that the facts about the Mountain City Consolidated Copper Co. of Nevada should be presented to a Federal grand jury promptly.

Kefauver is just back from West Coast hearings where his committee received testimony that the company is a dummy enterprise that sold stock to underworld figures who had income tax trouble and hoped to escape prosecution.

Kefauver said a former official of the Internal Revenue Bureau's Reno, Nev., office, now retired, is secretary treasurer of the company and a Veterans' Administration employment service official is a vice president.

To criticism yesterday from Senator Ferguson (R., Mich.) that the crime committee has not "gone deep enough or been specific enough," Kefauver replied that he doubted if Ferguson had kept abreast of its investigations.

Cohen's Pal Missing, FBI Investigating

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 24 (AP).—The FBI disclosed today it is investigating the disappearance of Eddie Borden, a former writer for Ring Magazine and former fight manager for Mickey Cohen.

Borden is the third friend of Cohen's to disappear mysteriously in the last 18 months. The others are Dave Ogul and Frank Niccoli, whose disappearance cost Cohen some $50,000 in bail money.

Ex-Capone Hoodlum Arrested in Chicago

CHICAGO, Nov. 24 (AP).—Paul (The Waiter) Ricca, former Capone hoodlum, was taken into custody today on a parole violation warrant but shortly afterward was released on $5000 bond.

Prosecutor Otto Kerner, jr., said the warrant, the second of its kind against Ricca, was issued in Washington. He said it was based on "new material" but did not disclose what the new charges were.

Philippine Agreement

Thanks largely to ECA Administrator William C. Foster, a good start appears to have been made toward carrying out the Bell report on the Philippines. In his conferences with President Quirino Mr. Foster encountered stiff resistance to that all-important, even basic provisions in the Bell report that further American aid be conditioned upon "supervision and direction" by an American mission. Filipino officials had a good deal to say about the islands being a free and sovereign power; all they needed from the United States was another substantial handout. But Mr. Foster made it unmistakably clear that the Santa Claus role is out. If further aid is to be recommended to Congress, it must be on a partnership basis involving all the strict accounting that is applied to ECA funds.

The agreement that was finally signed commits the Philippine government to three important steps: (1) It undertakes to collect an additional 250 million pesos in tax revenue, an increase of about 80 percent. (2) It agrees to pass a minimum-wage law, which the Bell Mission found to be important because of the pitifully low standard of living prevailing among some groups of Filipinos. (3) The Philippine Legislature must pass a general resolution accepting the other recommendations of the Bell Report. In return President Truman will ask Congress for economic aid for the Philippines, to be administered through the ECA, the top figure being 250 million dollars, presumably to be applied over a period of years. With the Quirino regime still reeking with corruption and law-enforcement at a low ebb, the program is admittedly a gamble. Most Americans would no doubt prefer to do nothing in support of the Quirino regime were it not for the danger that inaction might lead to a Communist coup. The Philippines is in a special category in American consideration.

The test will come, of course, in the steps that President Quirino takes to carry out his agreement. These steps must amount to something more than paper compliance. As to taxes, for example, it is said that no additional revenue would be needed if the present tax laws were enforced. But evasion and outright flouting of the tax laws is prevalent, and there are charges that the President himself is one of the evaders. Even where corruption has been exposed beyond question, Mr. Quirino has failed to prosecute the crooks and in some instances to sever their official connections. More and more Filipinos are asking whether he is afraid that a genuine housecleaning would expose himself. So confidence in the Manila regime continues to sink, the disorderly elements gain strength, and the democratic experiment in the Philippines moves closer toward a potential blow-up. If American aid is to be useful in these circumstances, it will certainly have to be administered with a firm hand.

Spur From Germany

We are not satisfied any more than Secretary Acheson is that the German Social Democratic election gains in the state elections of Hesse and Wurttemberg-Baden are, as some news correspondents say, a blow at rearmament. That is too simple a way of putting it. To be sure, the Social Democrats based their appeal to the electorate on opposition to the rearming of the Germans, but the campaigners said or implied that what they meant was rearming in present circumstances. All Western Germans want protection, but they see no protection in what as yet promises no more than the use of Germans in a retirement action from the Elbe to the Rhine, leaving a second trail of devastation in their wake.

In other words, the Germans are in much the same frame of mind as the French. They want protection, not liberation. The answer to that is that they will have protection if all the Atlantic allies and Germany pull their weight in a common effort. There is no military sense in putting the line at the Elbe without German participation. It has been said that Germany's contribution would be easier to obtain and more enthusiastic if she were assured of free and equal partnership in the combination. That is important—indeed, inevitable. But it is not of primary importance, for the Germans might think of such an offer as a kind of bribe in present circumstances of unpreparedness.

On Sunday there will be state elections in Bavaria, and it will be interesting to see whether the Social Democratic trend is maintained. Certainly the Social Democrats won handsomely enough in Hesse and Wurttemberg-Baden to warrant the reported self-confidence of the Social Democratic leader, Kurt Schumacher. His Social Democrats are now the strongest party in both Hesse and Wurttemberg-Baden, which, normally, are non-Socialist states. In Hesse, moreover, Chancellor Adenauer's party, the Christian Democrats, slipped to third place, the Rightist Free Democrats having also gained seats along with the Social Democrats. No doubt the Christian Democrats will try to get out the vote in their Bavarian stronghold, for the light vote in Hesse and Wurttemberg-Baden helped the well-organized Social Democrats. The lesson in any case is that the allies must redouble their energies to build up the unified defense of the West.

All-Out Offensive

Some uneasiness has been voiced over the launching of a new offensive in Korea by General MacArthur at the time when Chinese Communist representatives are about to meet with the United Nations and peace rumors have been flying. The war in Korea is as much political as military, and any possibilities of a truce with the Chinese must be explored vigorously. The military phase is still active, however, and General MacArthur has had no choice but to continue the clean-up in line with the U. N. mandate. He has supplied an unusual amount of personal leadership to the campaign with trips by air over the enemy lines.

Actually, it may be doubted whether the decision to push ahead will have much effect on the intentions of the Chinese. They have been, and are being, reassured that the aim of the U. N. forces is merely to put down the aggression, and that General MacArthur will respect the Manchurian border and the Yalu River dams. If the Chinese concern is one of security, the reassurances should help; if they have decided to intervene further, a show of determination by the U. N. forces might persuade them otherwise.

No one yet can be sure of the Chinese motives in Korea. They have declined to talk in the U. N. about their intervention, though doubtless the subject will arise. Likewise, there is no apparent explanation as to why their forces have been falling back in Korea. Some of the estimates of Chinese strength appear to have been exaggerated; the Chinese, at least, are still maintaining that the troops in Korea are "volunteers." The total North Korean-Chinese complement seems to number about 100,000 men, as opposed to about the same number in the U. N. offensive—though the U. N. forces so far have the advantage of superior firepower and air support.

At any rate, on the military side it would have been running a grave risk to assume that the Chinese would continue their withdrawal. General MacArthur has taken a gamble, and it must be assumed that on this score he knows his business. The gamble is that the U. N. forces can regain the momentum they had temporarily lost, touch base at the border, and complete their action before winter weather decrees a war of attrition. Such an advance need not in the least preclude the subsequent establishment of a buffer zone to satisfy legitimate Chinese fears. Important objective, as the MacArthur drive evidences, is to crush organized resistance. The guerilla activity which undoubtedly will remain then can be dealt with by less elaborate means.

Two dangers in particular stand out in this gamble. One is the hope voiced by General MacArthur that the campaign will be over by Christmas. Already there has been too much oscillation between optimism to gloom over Korea for any prediction to be safe; sour predictions make sour soldiers. The other is the possibility that even an unintentional violation of the border might provoke just the embroilment with China that the Pentagon fears. The latter point especially demands even more scrupulous attention than it has had so far.

Registration Test

Attorney General McGrath's petition to the Subversive Activities Control Board for an order requiring the Communist Party to register as a "Communist-action organization" obeys an unequivocal congressional mandate. When it defined the term "Communist-action organization" in the McCarran Act, Congress plainly intended to describe the Communist Party. The act declares that:

> The term "Communist-action organization" means (a) any organization in the United States (other than a diplomatic representative or mission of a foreign government accredited as such by the Department of State) which (i) is substantially directed, dominated, or controlled by the foreign government or foreign organization controlling the world Communist movement referred to in section 2 of this title, and (ii) operates primarily to advance the objectives of such world Communist movement . . .

In support of his petition, the Attorney General submitted to the Subversive Activities Control Board an impressive array of evidence culled from reports of the FBI to show that the Communist Party answers this description perfectly. The party is entitled under the law to submit contrary evidence at public hearings. There seems little room for doubt, however, that when this ritual has been completed it will be ordered to register. Presumably it will then refuse to do so and will appeal, as it has a right to do, to the courts.

In court, the party may call into question the legality of the registration requirement; and in time we shall have a dispositive test of the validity of the McCarran Act. It may be argued that an act which imposes a special requirement to register upon the Communist Party by describing it so precisely partakes of the character of a bill of attainder. And it may be argued also that the restraints imposed upon members of the party as a result of the requirement to register constitute abridgments of the freedoms of expression and association guaranteed by the first amendment. As to the merits of such arguments, we shall have to await the ultimate judgment of the Supreme Court.

Assuming that the Subversive Activities Control Board orders the party to register and that its order is sustained in the courts, Mr. McGrath's enforcement problem will have just begun. For at that point, it is quite possible that the Communist Party will declare itself dissolved and its officers and members will assert that they are no longer Communists. If they reform under another name, as the Communist Party did when it was outlawed in Canada, prosecution will present an extremely awkward problem. Mr. McGrath will have to start all over again to prove that the new party, association, or whatever it may call itself, answers the McCarran Act's description of a "Communist-action organization."

The problem may prove even more perplexing in respect of the requirement of the act that individual party members register. It will doubtless be easy enough for the FBI to produce proof that, say, William Z. Foster, now national chairman of the party, is a Communist at the present time. But if Mr. Foster should turn in a formal resignation and assert that he is no longer a member of the party (which may by then have asserted that it no longer exists) it will be quite a job to prove the contrary. In prosecuting Communists, the Department of Justice generally relies upon witnesses who were former members of the party and assert that they left it. The department can scarcely begin now to deny the bona fides of all resignations. And it can scarcely be the intent of Congress to keep all Communists from becoming former Communists.

Right Of Asylum

The decision of the International Court of Justice in the case of Victor Raul Haya de la Torre—the outlawed Peruvian leader who has taken refuge in the Colombian Embassy in Lima—was, as we noted the other day, vague and unsatisfactory. Nevertheless, the comment of the former Colombian Foreign Minister to the effect that European jurists have shown their incapacity to understand Western Hemisphere concepts is gratuitous and by implication a slap at all the judges who participated in the case. The fact is that while the judges might have been more precise, the real flaw lies in the lack of international law governing the right of asylum.

To many Latin Americans, especially the Colombians, the right of political asylum, for various reasons, is a matter of high principle, although not recognized by the United States. (A pathetic incident occurred in this connection when an unfortunate Latin American unsuccessfully sought refuge in an American Embassy, then was shot down after the door had been shut in his face.) The trouble is that the Havana Convention of 1928, upon which the decision was based, apparently implies that a refugee must be in imminent danger before he can be offered asylum, and it leaves open the salient point of who is to determine whether his offense is political. Hence the decision that although Haya is a political refugee, Colombia did not have the right to offer him asylum and Peru is not bound to furnish him safe conduct. The Montevideo treaty of 1933 gave the country granting asylum the right to determine unilaterally whether the refugee was political; but this treaty was inoperative in the Haya case because Peru never ratified it.

Obviously the right of asylum is open to abuse; for instance, the murderer of Lieut. Col. Carlos Delgado Chalbaud in Venezuela sought political asylum. In the opinion of most Latin Americans, however, Haya is definitely a political refugee whose life would be endangered if he were surrendered to Peruvian authorities. Thus nothing has been settled, and Colombia has emphasized her determination to stick to principle. The Haya case demonstrates the need for more precise treaty understandings, for doubtless similar cases will continue to arise. Short of action by the Organization of American States, Peru could make a gesture that would be well received elsewhere by relinquishing her dubious victory and granting Haya safe passage out of the country.

Pause To Refresh

Our hearts go out to the gondoliers of Venice. They have threatened, apparently in a solid body, to go on strike unless the mayor and city council remove from the community's canals a gaily-bedaubed red-and-yellow gondola advertising a foreign liquor or potion known as Coca Cola. The gondoliers, so far as we can judge from the inadequate reports now available, have expressed no objection to the product itself. Their complaint is lodged against the importation of modern merchandising methods in its behalf.

The Coca Cola Co. tried some time ago to persuade the gondoliers to paint coke signs on their gondolas. It says a good deal about the character of their craft that they refused indignantly. The company was forced to bring in a less sensitive gondolier from Verona; and he has so far encountered nothing but abuse from the populace as he plies his distinctive vessel up and down the watery highways of the city.

Coca Cola is, to be sure, a virtuous drink. Perhaps in time it will make Chianti and Asti Spumonte obsolete throughout the length and breadth of Italy. We are inclined to doubt, however, that this dubious conquest will be achieved by the techniques which the hucksters have employed so successfully over here. Even the most nostalgic of Americans, to whom a glass of coke in Venice might seem of itself a cheering reminder of home, would be unlikely to welcome bobbing billboards on the canals of one of Europe's loveliest cities. Venice, if not the Venetians, deserves a reasonable forbearance. The Coca Cola Co. would do well, we think, to pause for refreshment.

British Medicine

Mr. Davis (letter published November 21) has ignored the most significant point in Mrs. Anderson's letter of November 17. She quoted from the recently published impartial Gallup poll showing that 48 percent of the British people feel there has been no improvement in medical care after two years of socialized medicine.

The United States has more doctors than any nation in the world and our standards of medical training are the highest. In a Nation as vast as ours there are bound to be some remote areas where medical care, along with education and living standards are far below the national average. It is not, and never will be feasible to establish a great medical center, or a great university, or a great industry, on the top of some remote mountain.

I have lived in England and my personal experience is that under no circumstances would I willingly exchange American medicine for that which is available in England.

Priests in Hospitals

A news story in The Washington Post of November 19 from an Associated Press dispatch regarding Secretary Forrestal raises a perplexing question. It repeats an allegation made by the American Mercury that officials at the Bethesda Naval Hospital would not permit a priest to see the ailing patient although the Secretary had asked to see him.

The question is serious. Is it the policy of the Armed Forces hospitals to neglect those religious consolations which are widely accepted, even to deny religious rights and rites to disturbed patients?

I ask the question in this general form because of a personal experience. My own wife was admitted some time ago to Walter Reed General Hospital. After a preliminary survey, the doctors there performed an immediate exploratory operation, and remedied the difficulty. But, before the operation, she asked to see a priest. Her request was not complied with, in spite of the fact that it was repeated several times.

Littered Parks

The other day I visited Fort Kemble Park in Wesley Heights. I found there large areas thickly strewn with beer cans and other refuse. I was particularly disgusted because this was the second weekend I had found this pleasant little park messed up.

One may speculate as to the type of mentality that accompanies this form of vandalism. In his notable work, Science and Sanity, Dr. Korzybski discusses adult infantilism. He cites numerous characteristics of the infantile adult. Dr. Korzybski says: "Children and the feeble-minded are usually untidy and noisy. Visiting a public park, witnessing a 'celebration,' will show an observer clearly how infantile grown-ups behave."

The abundance of the beer cans would indicate that the participants in this party were adults, at least physically. The prevalence of the littering of our parks and other public places with rubbish, by adults, is a sad commentary on our educational methods.

Phone Strike Coverage

As usual, The Washington Post continued all through the trying days of the recent Western Electric dispute and "lockout" of long lines of employes to report the news unprejudicially. Statements from both sides were given equal space. Incidents and events leading up to the final settlement were given full coverage. Very few times were principals in the dispute quoted out of context with the resultant distortion possible.

You are especially to be commended for the large amount of space given over to coverage of the dispute. Rather than concentrate on the sensational aspects, your staff gave attention to the problems underlying all phases of the strike. This type reporting is very important in management-labor relations because of the public's unconcern with the subject except during times of duress.

The aims of organized labor are so often distorted and vilified in most newspapers that it is indeed refreshing to receive The Washington Post's factual and complete coverage of this subject. Few newspapers realize that all of us are principals in some newsworthy event at least once in our lifetime. We are inclined to assign the same percentage of accuracy to a newspaper's coverage of subsequent events as we found in its coverage of the event with which we are familiar. Again, thank you. You make a hard job less difficult.

No Acheson Resignation

Comments in two recent editorials in The Washington Post about the Secretary of State have supplied considerable food for thought, unfortunately indigestible. They have suggested that in the light of the recent election, the Secretary should resign. This proposal or suggestion appears to be based on two quite different tenets. It relates on the one hand to an inarticulate assumption that we have or should have a parliamentary or quasi-parliamentary form of government in which the leader of a defeated policy resigns after an unsuccessful election. But the proposal seems also to rest on the assumption that after Mr. Acheson's resignation a new Secretary of State, equally devoted to the policies of the President, would have more success in gaining congressional and public acceptance for the program.

I happen to doubt the appropriateness of parliamentary practices in the United States, and I have little faith in the possibility of successfully grafting a parliamentary limb on a presidential tree. But under either system I fail to see why a principal officer of the present Administration should resign as a result of the election when the Democratic Party has in fact continued to maintain majorities in both Houses of Congress.

The majority in the Senate happens to be exceedingly slim; but an equally thin margin in the House of Commons has not deterred the Labor Party from continuing with the same cabinet as before. Nor is there any clear sign in the recent election that the major elements of our foreign policy have been repudiated by the people.

It is true that Senator Dirksen and others who share his views were elected; but so were Governor Dewey and Governor Duff and Governor Warren, all of whom are in substantial if not complete agreement with the Administration on foreign policy, not to speak of a sizable number of Democrats who have been loyal supporters of the President in the foreign field. On the parliamentary theory, Mr. Acheson should resign if his policy was clearly repudiated; it was not. (Nor has The Washington Post itself turned isolationist!)

The Washington Post's tactical argument I find equally unsatisfying. The suggestion is, as I understand it, that a new Secretary of State, pursuing the same policies, would avoid attack and in fact gain new adherents for the President's program. With apologies for the phrase, I suggest that The Washington Post for once is naif. Mr. Acheson is, so they say, vulnerable to attack; but any successor must, under present circumstances, be vulnerable also. If no flaws exist in his armor, they will soon be created.

What The Washington Post misses, I think, is the source of the attack on Mr. Acheson. As Secretary of State, he necessarily symbolizes the policies of the Administration in the foreign field. What is being attacked when Mr. Acheson appears to be the object is the Administration's foreign policy. The real sources of opposition are twofold.

One group does not believe in the desirability of our economic and military aid programs. At any given point it is prepared to suggest that no aid is desirable, or that half as much will do. Senator Taft has explained that he is no isolationist, but he has also made it abundantly clear that he doubts the wisdom of any military aid program for Europe and that he would be satisfied to give little or no economic aid. Naturally, Mr. Taft and his allies will attack the Secretary of State or any Secretary of State who wholeheartedly supports all that has been represented in the Truman Doctrine, the Marshall Plan and the Military Assistance Program and Point IV.

The second group of persons who call for a resignation (and they include some of the first) are those who disagree with the Administration on policy in the Far East. The Washington Post itself has been in disagreement with the Administration and therefore with Secretary Acheson, on Far Eastern policy; but the attack on Mr. Acheson comes from those whose objections are the precise opposite of those made by The Washington Post.

There is every reason why The Washington Post and other responsible organs should urge that the President and the Secretary of State and the Democratic leaders in Congress seek to find the largest possible area of agreement on foreign policy with the leaders of the Republican Party and seek to reduce to a minimum the impact of partisan strife on foreign policy. But to increase the area of agreement and to avoid unnecessary strife are not objectives that can be secured by appeasement. The position of the present Secretary of State is an extraordinarily unenviable one. The position of any successor, if the successor attempted to carry out a consistent policy under the President's direction, would be hopeless.

Repaying The War Wounded

By Malvina Lindsay

Practical Sympathy

YOU GLANCE at a news photograph of a group of the "boys brought back from Korea" who are being awarded the decoration of the Purple Heart. Some are on stretchers, many in wheelchairs. You wonder how many you will see later on the streets—limping or being led.

You start to turn the page to something more pleasant—then stop. Why are you so casual about this? Why in less than a decade have you become so calloused to the toll of war?

You think of the first returned wounded servicemen you saw during the last war. It was in a crowded restaurant, one of the gaudily gay places patronized largely by young people. A group entered, three boys, three girls. One of them, a tall good looking youth, was in khaki—and on crutches. One foot had been amputated.

A young, light-haired girl walked beside him. All his companions seemed gay, nonchalant. They carried off their entrance with ease, even though all eyes were turned on them.

You could sense the wave of tactless, commiserating comment flowing from table to table. You are angry at those who stared obviously or commented. Yet they were genuinely shocked and sympathetic. War was just beginning to come home to them.

You went home deeply moved. The scene haunted you for a long time. Then men in uniform much more disabled began to appear on streets, in restaurants. And newspapers were publishing long rows of half-column photographs under captions, "Killed," "Wounded" or "Missing in Action."

NOW AFTER five years of what is called peace, the wounded veteran still seems a part of the everyday picture. Does this mean that he is going to be neglected? Are we becoming as accustomed and resigned to the fortunes and misfortunes of battle as must have been those who lived under the recurrent devastations of the Thirty Years War?

We might as well face the fact, you tell yourself, that people today are not going to be as emotionally moved as formerly by the sight of the war wounded. The freshness of the first impact of eight years ago cannot be regained. Yet in some respects that is not such a bad thing—provided sympathy takes a more practical turn.

For there will be far less public curiosity, sentimentality, and obvious pity to embarrass the returned disabled servicemen. He will be accepted more as a normal member of society. Also he will have the advantage of having had his trail blazed by the many veterans of the last war who have shown that despite severe physical handicaps they can earn livings, live full, active, and successful lives.

Yes, what the new war wounded need from the public is not tears and pity but a big chance at rehabilitation and jobs. And our consciences, instead of hurting us because we are not shocked as formerly at their plight, should drive us to seeing that they get this in full measure from Government and from industry.

CERTAINLY this is the time of all times to give them these things. For there is the great cry for manpower, destined to go on indefinitely as the Nation rearms. There will be the increasing demand for home front skills that those unable to go back to the battle lines can develop.

You think of the need, not only for war production, but for keeping the civilian economy from being weakened. You wonder if a big enough effort is being made, or will be made, to rehabilitate, train and use in industry all the men and women, veterans and otherwise, whose minds and aptitudes are whole even if their bodies aren't.

You think uneasily of the many discussions on manpower you hear in which employers and "planners" speak only of putting more pressure (by longer hours) on those who already have jobs and of "coaxing" the housewives—mostly the present stay-at-home mothers with young children—back to the factory.

Both of these measures, hard though they be on human beings and upsetting to family life, may become necessary. But why is there not more talk, more planning, more effort under way for quicker utilization of the disabled who are so eager to share the work load?

You think of the crippled veterans of the last war who told you that their number one concern was jobs, not sympathy. Behind this was the unspoken desire for normal living, self-respect, for feeling themselves wanted and useful. Wouldn't it be fine, you think, if every man coming home from battle on a stretcher could feel the assurance he would never have to be a fifth wheel?

"Guatemala Results"

I was very glad to read your editorial of November 19 regarding the Guatemalan elections.

I wish to protest vigorously the totalitarian actions on the part of the present government to stop the growing popularity of the leading "opposition" candidate, General Ydigoras. He was driven underground on July 24, after two plots on his life. His home was assaulted by nearly 40 assassins. He was ridiculously and falsely charged with "conspiring" against the "democratic" administration. His followers were persecuted and sent to prisons.

Therefore, after July 24, he did not do any personal campaigning, and the present government is indeed cynical in declaring these past elections "impartial and democratic." GUATEMALAN.

Approaches To China

By Marquis Childs

U. S. Recognizes Buffer Zone

THE GREAT Chinese puzzle has baffled more people in Washington than anything th has happened in a very long time. Even the most confident experts in and out of Government have hesitated before the enigma of the behavior of the Chinese Communists.

Childs

Only four or five people in Washington know what has actually happened. The best informed belief is that negotiations at second or third hand were carried on in greatest secrecy with the government in Peiping. In any event assurance was given that the United States would consider creation of a buffer zone along the Manchurian-North Korean border.

This may or may not have been the reason why the Chinese troops in Korea withheld their fire as United Nations forces approached the border. But the fact that there was no immediate encounter with the Chinese Communists eased somewhat the tension under which top officials here have been living for the past two weeks.

In all this John Foster Duller, Republican adviser to the State Department, has played a leading part. He came from Lake Success to Washington 10 days ago to discuss it at the White House with President Truman and Secretary of State Dean Acheson.

Likewise in preparation for the discussions with the Chinese Communist delegation to Lake Success, Dulles has taken the leading part. This is in line with his general assignment in charge of all Asian affairs before the U. N. Because of the scope of his assignment, he has exerted a broad influence over American policy in Asia in general.

IN ROUGH outline the approach to the Chinese Communists will be as follows: The United States will agree to creation of a buffer zone along the border. The controversy will come over whether it is to take in a strip on the Manchurian as well as the Korean side of the line.

The zone would be policed by a U. N. commission. While Communist China is not likely soon to gain a seat in the U. N., the United States is prepared to agree that as a special concession they should have a representative on the commission for the border zone. It is realized that they could hardly be expected to agree to such a zone without having representation on it.

At the same time the United States will insist that it is essential that a sizable U. N. force remain in North Korea. This is considered necessary as a safeguard, it will be pointed out, in order to insure that the agreement on the buffer zone is carried through and that peace and order are restored to war-torn Korea.

In preliminary talks with the Chinese delegation some exploration will be done by Ales Bebler, Yugoslav delegate to the U. N., who is now chairman of the Security Council. Bebler has had several discussions with Dulles. He is confident he understands the psychology of the Communist Chinese leaders, ascribing their reactions in no small part to "the infantile disease that attacks new Communists with great severity."

THESE preparations are on the assumption that the delegation is coming with the realistic objective of averting war. If they are here merely for a propaganda build-up to pave the way for further aggression, then nothing is to be hoped for.

All through the Korean war both the actual and the potential peril have been so great that the average citizen may have become somewhat blunted to new alarms such as the threat of all-out war with China. But both in the Pentagon and the State Department there has never been any reaction but one of dread and horror at the thought of becoming involved with China's vast manpower and terrible range of climate and geography. In western Europe this feeling has been, if anything, more acute as America seemed to be poised on the edge of the abyss.

In this kind of situation reckless and irresponsible statements can do the utmost harm. It is all very well to talk about consulting with the political opposition. But on such delicate day-to-day negotiations consultation is obviously impossible.

Republicans should note that Dulles has been one of the three or four chief participants in all this extremely touchy business. He is there because Senator Arthur Vandenberg insisted that his appointment was essential if there was to be actual bipartisanship in foreign policy. If the opposition now ignores or repudiates its ablest operator in the foreign policy field, it will be a pretty clear indication that it is not genuinely interested in cooperating on the basic issues of peace and war.

U. S. Unwraps Jap Peace Plan

tinue there—a plan which the Russians have questioned.

3. Japan would recognize the independence of Korea, agree to a U. N. trusteeship over the Ryukyu and Bonin Islands, with the United States acting as adminstering authority, and would accept a future decision by the United Kingdom, Russia, China and the United States "with reference to the status of Formosa, Pescadores, South Sakhalin and the Kuriles."

If the Big Four could not agree within a year on what to do about these former Japanese islands, the whole matter would be turned over to the U. N. General Assembly.

The proposal to limit Big Four discussions to a year appears to be a way of preventing Russia or any other power from having an indefinite veto on the islands' legal status.

For as a practical matter, Formosa and the Pescadores have been occupied since the end of the Pacific war by the Chinese Nationalists, and South Sakhalin and the Kuriles have been occupied by the Russians, under wartime big power agreements. Moreover, Korea has long since been established as a nation independent of Japan's authority and the Ryukyus and Bonins are in the American-dominated area of the Western Pacific. The strategic American base on Okinawa is in the Ryukyu chain.

It was in connection with the territorial proposal that the Russians raised their sharpest challenge in a memorandum which was made public in translation by the State Department. They said that the Cairo Declaration of December, 1943, by the United States, Britain and China and the Potsdam Agreement of July, 1945, supported by those three countries plus Russia, had already settled the question of giving Formosa and the nearby Pescadores to China.

Similarly the Russian note insisted that the Yalta Agreement of February, 1945, among America, Britain and Russia decided on the return of Southern Sakhalin Island and the Kuriles to Russia. Russia already had Northern Sakhalin. In view of Cairo, Yalta and Potsdam, the Russians asked what the United States meant by making the status of all those islands "subject to a new decision."

The Russiaans also said none of the agreements mentioned had provided for taking the Ryukyu and Bonin Islands away from Japan but rather had disavowed any intention on the part of the big powers of "territorial expansion." The Soviets therefore sharply inquired what basis the United States had for taking over under a United Nations trusteeship the Ryukyu and Bonin Islands.

Time Limit Issue

They also wanted to know whether a time limit would be fixed for withdrawing occupation forces from Japan, following completion of a peace treaty. Further they wanted to know in connection with the idea of keeping post treaty security forces in Japan whether it is proposed to create a Japanse army, navy, and air force and whether the United States plans to maintain Army, Navy and Air Bases on Japanese territory.

As a final shot, the Soviets inquired what steps the United States has taken to learn the views of Communist China with respect to the Japanese treaty.

All these are questions which the United States may answer formally in some future note to Moscow or may deal with informally in exchanges between Dulles and Soviet Ambassador Jacob A. Malik at the U. N.

Aside from the territorial and security questions and the question of what nations should hake the treaty, other points of the American plan dealth with issues which may prove to be less controversitl in the drafting of a treaty. Those four points are:

1. Japanese membership in the U. N. "would be contemplated."

2. Japan would agree to live up to various international treaties dealing with narcotics control, ocean fishing arrangements, etc.

3. All the nations supscribing to the treaty would waive claims against Japan arising out of acts of war prior to September 2, 1945, except that the Allied powers would hold Japanese property within their territory and Japan would either restore Allied property or else provide funds "to compensate for an agreed percentage of lost value."

4. Claim disputes would be settled by a special "neutral tribunal" set up by the president of the International Court and other disputes would be handled either through diplomatic channels or through the court.

In laying its treaty proposals before other nations the United States said they were tentative and did not commit the United States on details.

The big stumbling block of the past—whether the Big Four should dictate the treaty terms as Russia has desired or whether other nations would participate in drafting the pact as the United States has desired—was not clearly raised by the exchange released yesterday.

Russia did inquire, however, whether "the possibility exists" that some of the big powers, obviously meaning the United States and Britain, might conclude a separate peace with Japan. Soviets asserted that in January, 1942, all the United Nations had pledged themselves not to do so.

Wife Puts Realism Into Judo Lesson

TOLEDO, Ohio, Nov. 24 (AP). Judo lessons put Roy Knisley, 26, in the hospital today with a serious knife wound. Knisley told police he was showing his wife how to avoid a knife thrust last night. She "attacked" him and he failed to dodge in time, he said. His lung was punctured.

CIO Reelects Murray as President

CHICAGO, Nov. 24 (AP).—CIO President Philip Murray, with one decade in office, today won his eleventh term.

Reelected by acclamation, Murray promptly promised to build the six-million-member labor body into "a bigger, stronger and more influential" organization in national and international affairs.

But for one major and three minor changes, all top officers and executive board members were reelected at the final session of the national CIO convention without opposition.

"Not a Selfish Group"

Murray said the CIO "is not a selfish group" and has "one prime purpose—to help America and to help its people."

"It has given all the people of the United States a better America," the silver-haired, 64-year-old CIO chief declared.

"You have come to be recognized in the United States and the entire world as the torch-bearers of freedom and democracy," he told the 600 convention delegates.

Michael Quill, squatty little president of the Transport Workers of America, took over one of the nine CIO vice presidencies. He replaces John Green, president of the Marine and Shipbuilders Union.

Murray announced from the platform that Green had notified him that, for "reasons of health," he did not wish to run again for a CIO vice presidency.

Green Under Fire

Green has been under fire for some time, however, within his own union. The Marine and Shipbuilders' executive board demanded only a week ago that he not run again for the presidency of the union when it convenes in Boston next January. Green reportedly has acceded to that demand.

The complaint against Green has been that the union's membership has dropped off in recent months.

Quill's elevation to a CIO vice presidency made him an ex-officio member of the CIO executive board. His post on the executive board was given to Gustav Faber, secretary-treasurer of the Transport Workers.

In other executive board changes, President Harry Martin replaced Executive Vice President Sam Eubanks as American Newspaper Guild representative, and President Wayne E. Fountain succeeded Secretary-Treasurer James J. Mitchell as representative of the United Shoe Workers.

Secretary-treasurer James B. Carey, eight CIO vice presidents, and 48 of the 51 executive board members will continue in office.

F. D. R. Declared He Wasn't 'Hopeless Invalid'

with tears when he saw me, and I gathered from his conversation that he was dead certain that I had had a stroke and that another one would soon completely remove me. At that time, of course, my general health was extremely good and I was in the midst of the long process of building up the muscles so that I could walk first with somebody's arm and a cane and later give up the brace on my right leg.

Jim Cox from that day on always shook his head when my name was mentioned and said in sorrow that in effect I was a hopeless invalid and could never resume any active participation in business or political affairs.

As late as 1931—I think it was—when I was coming back from the Governors' Conference in Indiana, I stopped off at Dayton to see Jim Cox. He had had a very serious operation, followed by a thrombosis in his leg and was very definitely invalided. His whole attitude during the two hours I spent with him alone was the same—that it was marvelous that I could stand the strain of the Governorship, but that in all probability I would be dead in a few months. He spent the greater part of the time asking me solicitously how I was, though he was a much sicker man than I was.

He made a fine come-back and is furious today if anybody ever refers to the thrombosis he had in his leg—but I still think he expects me to pop off at any moment.

Do you remember when at headquarters in the General Motors Building in 1928 I was treated by Raskob and Mrs. Moskowitz all the time I was there in July, August and the first part of September as though I was one of those pieces of window-dressing that had to be borne with because of a certain political value in non-New York City areas?

That remark of Al Smith's was I know sincere. Just as, I think, he was sincere when he told me over the telephone at Warm Springs that if I were elected Governor, I could be sworn in and then go South for January and February, leaving the Governorship to Herbert Lehman in the meantime, and returning a few days before the close of the Legislative Session.

In line with this he planned for several weeks after January as you know, to stay in Albany at the De Witt Clinton Hotel for several weeks after January 1, 1929 to help me, and then Herbert Lehman, to carry on the work.

You know, of course, that I kept 16 of his 18 Department heads, but he was furious because I put in Miss Perkins in place of old man Hamilton who had been a complete stuffed shirt as head of the Labor Department, and because I put in Eddie Flynn as Secretary of State in place of Bob Moses, whom I left, however, as Chairman of the State Council of Parks and as President of the Long Island Park Commission.

Furthermore, about a week before Christmas, 1928, Al came to see me and told me that Mrs. Moskowitz was preparing my Inaugural Address and Message to the Legislature. Honestly I think he did this in complete good faith, wanting to help, but at the same time with the rather definite thought that he himself would continue to run the Governorship. His first bad shock came when I told him that I had already prepared my Inaugural Address and that my Message to the Legislature was nearly finished. As I remember it, I told him that I would show both of them to Mrs. Moscowitz before I went to Albany on January first, but it is my best recollection that I did not find an opportunity to do so, though I really meant to at the time. It would not have made much difference one way or the other because I knew just what I wanted to say and had it all down on paper.

It is a matter of record that he actually had engaged a large suite at the De Witt Clinton Hotel, to be used for at least several weeks after my Inauguration. Both Mrs. Roosevelt and I were in every way cordial and considerate of the Smiths on Inauguration Day. I guess by that time, however, it had become pretty evident that I was not going South and that I was going to be my own Governor and not somebody's else. You know, too, the politics in any Capitol. My Inaugural Address and the Message to the Legislature were both pretty strong documents and the crowd sensing the implication began to flock around their new Governor. Thus without any premeditation or action on my part, Al, I think, got the impression that to hang around Albany would be a grave mistake on his part and he returned to New York with his whole retinue in a day or two. Before he left, however, he came to see me and our parting was in every way cordial and pleasant.

I have written you much too lengthily but your letter recalls many old scenes. Keep this please in the utmost confidence.

It would be a fine thing if you could write down some more episodes and recollections of that 1928 campaign and all other events in which you have taken such a fine part.

With my warm regards,

Always sincerely,
F.D.R.

This letter was written to an old friend, but F.D.R. decided not to send it and filed it in his private file for the historical record.

F.D.R. to John Cudahy in Dublin
THE WHITE HOUSE
April 16, 1938

Dear John:

Thanks for your letters. There is one thing about the world situation—and I think only one which is on the hopeful side of the ledger—that we in the United States are still better off than the people or the governments of any other great country.

Over here t' is the same element that exists in London. Unfortunately, it is led by so many of your friends and mine. They would really lik me to be a Neville Chamberlain — and if I would promise that, the market would go up and they would work positively and actively for the resumption of prosperity. But if that were done, we would only be breeding far more serious trouble four or eight years from now.

Dear old Colonel House was a grand soul and we shall all miss him.

As ever yours,

Cudahy had written critically of Chamberlain's appeasement policy, and the weakness and vacillation of the British government in the face of the absorption of Austria. Colonel House died on March 28th at seventy-nine.

Tighe Woods Wins Los Angeles Rent Appeal Decision

The United States Court of Appeals ruled yesterday that Housing Expediter Tighe E. Woods is not under compulsion to remove rent controls in Los Angeles.

The appellate court reversed an order issued by Judge Alexander Holtzoff in Federal District Court directing Woods to sign a rent decontrol resolution adopted by the Los Angeles city council.

The appellate court directed the District Court to dismiss the suit brought by Frank W. Babcock, a Los Angeles apartment house owner.

The appellate court said:

"Because the resolution adopted by the city council was not published or posted or held for 30 days pending a possible petition for a referendum, all as required by the city charter for valid legislative action, we must hold it not, as yet, adopted in accordance with applicable local laws and therefore not effective for the purposes of the Federal statute."

Catholic Orders Study Rule Changes

ROME, Nov. 24 (U.P.).—Leaders of 1,300,000 members of Roman Catholic religious societies will meet Sunday to modernize their rules.

At the 10-day conference, first of its kind in church history, about 70 heads of religious orders will debate proposed changes in church regulations under the supervision of Vatican authorities who have been studying the possibility of such changes since 1944.

The conference is concerned with the spiritual mission of the priests, monks and nuns of about 200 religious orders in view of changing world conditions.

It is expected that decisions will be made on means of giving the church's teaching mission more force and to permit those now bound to monasteries and convents to get out in the cities and in the countryside to preach and to develop the use of the radio and the movies in church work.

Vatican authorities in the Sacred Congregation of the Religious have been preoccupied for some time with antiquated regulations of the orders which are considered in some cases harmful to the church mission in the modern world. Many of the orders, for example, carry out their missions among youths under rules written 300 years ago while others are bound by regulations even older.

Only men will attend the closed daily six-hour work sessions during the conference. Women representatives will spend their day in working on reports and in prayer.

Church quarters said the conference will not change the life of prayer to which the religious dedicate themselves but that "certain restrictive and traditional rules which no longer serve practical purposes, especially in today's world" would be eased.

Business Man Delays Plan To Be Monk

. . . Back from monastery

COLLEGEVILLE, Minn., Nov. 24 (AP).—A San Francisco man who gave up married life and a lucrative business to enter a Benedictine monastery has abandoned his plans, at least temporarily.

Donald D. Foster, 50, has returned to San Francisco, St. John's Abbey at Collegeville said today, after spending about 11 months in preparation for his acceptance into the Catholic Order of St. Benedict.

Inability to meet certain requirements at this time prompted Foster to return to San Francisco, a statement signed by Foster said.

Foster entered the abbey last January 10. Behind he left his wife of 25 years and a daughter who is a nun. He also gave up a good job and sold a $54,000 a year hobby shop.

During his stay at St. John's abbey, Foster was permitted to live the religious life of a lay brother. He was not formally admitted as a member of the religious community.

Abbey officials said Foster was going back home to "talk things over with his wife and see whether it is possible to fulfill the conditions which at the present time cannot be met." Details of the requirements were not disclosed.

The abbey spokesman said Foster is "not in any way bound, and can easily come back."

One of the most widely representative church gatherings ever held on the American continent will convene in Cleveland next week.

More than 100 local lay and religious leaders are expected to be among the 1200 official and 5000 unofficial delegates to attend what the authoritative Christian Century magazine calls "the most important event in the life of the Protestant Church since the Reformation."

Approximately 90 percent of Protestant and Eastern Orthodox Church membership will be represented among delegates from 29 communions with 150,000 churches and more than 31 million members.

Eight Groups to Merge

Chief business will be the merging of eight interdenominational, cooperative agencies, including the Federal Council of Churches, to form the National Council of Churches of Christ in the United States.

Other benefits expected include the elimination of duplication of services among the eight agencies; acceleration in the growth of cooperation between the communions; establishment of a "clearing house" for information; and provision of a focal point for developing Protestant strategy on key issues.

Besides the Federal Council, the merger will include: Foreign Missions Conference of North America, Home Missions Council of North America, International Council of Religious Education, Missionary Education Movement of the United States and Canada, National Protestant Council on Higher Education, United Council of Church Women, and the United Stewardship Council.

Largest of the denomination to join the council is the Methodist Church with almost nine million members; smallest, the Evangelical Unity of Czech Moravian Brethren in North America with slightly over 5000 members.

Meetings of the agencies Monday and Tuesday will precede the constitutional convention. Each of these meetings will dissolve in preparation for formal organization of the national council, which will take the rest of the week.

One of the anticipated floor fights will be over the location of the group's headquarters. Washington has been mentioned along with New York and Chicago.

Church leaders say the organization will draw the battle lines for a more militant Protestantism in America.

Many Benefits Expected

It will form, sponsors say, "a powerful channel through which to register Protestant convictions on moral and spiritual issues of the day."

Among the area delegates will be: Roger Altman, Seventh Day Adventist Planning Committee; Mrs. Elsie C. Beckett, Home Missions Council; Dr. Marr McLeod Bethune, United Council of Church Women; Miss Nadine Blair, Federal Council; the Rev. Davis H. Brewer, United Lutheran Church; the Rev. John M. Burgess, Protestant Episcopal Church; Miss Nannie H. Burroughs, National Baptist Convention; the Rev. W. P. Bradley, Foreign Missions Conference; the Rev. H. J. Callis, A. M. E. Zion Church.

The Rev. Clarence W. Cranford, president, Washington Federation of Churches; the Rev. A. Stauffer Curry, International Council of Religious Education; Mrs. Lucille E. Dale, African Methodist Episcopal Church; Tilford E. Dudley, Federal Council; the Rev. Arthur F. Elmes, Congregational Christian Church; the Rev. Charles Enders, Home Missions Council; Bishop Charles Wesley Flint, Methodist Church; Mrs. J. Warren Hastings, International Convention of Disciples of Christ; L. H. Hemmingway, Home Missions Council; Mrs. C. C. Jernagin, National Baptist Convention; the Rev. W. H. Jernagin, pastor of Mount Carmel Baptist Church.

Mrs. Walter Judd, Congregation Christian General Council; Mrs. Josephine A. Kyles, International Council of Religious Education; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph J. LeVallee, Methodist Church; Mrs. Minnie L. McFaddy, African Methodist Episcopal Church; Mr. and Mrs. DeWitt L. Miller, Church of the Brethren; Canon G. Gardner Monks, Protestant Episcopal Church; the Rev. C. T. Murray, Federal Council; Arnold T. Ohrn, planning committee; D. Stewart Patterson, Methodist Church; the Rev. C. H. Pearson, National Baptist Convention; the Rev. D. C. Pope, Foreign Missions Conference; the Rev. Edward Hughes Pruden, American Baptist Convention; Mrs. E. V. Pugh, International Convention, Disciples of Christ.

Mrs. Harold L. Quivers, Washington Federation of Churches; the Rev. Oscar L. Rand, International Council of Community Churches; the Rev. Frederick E. Reissig, executive secretary, Washington Federation of Churches; Mrs. Fred C. Reynolds, Methodist Church; Brig. Gen. C. George F. Ricky (ret.), Federal Council; Erwin E. Roonfelt, planning committee.

Truman, Aged Couple Agree On Rule: 'Count Your Blessings'

President Truman and an 83-year-old couple agreed yesterday on the formula for a long life—just "count your blessings."

That's the way they did it, Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Gaddy, of Austin, Colo., told the President when he remarked that they carried their age very well. It was true of his mother, too, the President answered.

"She counted her blessings and lived in the present and lived to be 94," the Gaddys said Mr. Truman told them.

Once Fixed Their Home

The Gaddys, here to visit their son on their sixtieth wedding anniversary, recalled that the President once fixed some holes in front of their house.

That was in the '20s, when Mr. Truman was commissioner of roads in Jackson County, where the Gaddys lived.

When they complained about water standing in the holes, Mr. Truman promptly paid them a personal call and just as promptly had the holes fixed, Gaddy recalled.

The President remembered the incident well, Gaddy said.

"The President said he sent 60 million dollars on the roads in Jackson County when he was commissioner and that there had been no complaints yet—even though he'd been investigated by experts," Gaddy said afterwards.

Highlight of Celebration

Mr. Truman invited his former Jackson County constituents to visit him when he heard they were coming to Washington. The visit was the highlight of the anniversary celebration for the 83-year-old couple.

Two of their five children were with them. They are Millard, who lives at St. Albans, N. Y., and Paul, with whom they are staying, at 4200 55th ave., Bladensburg, Md. Paul is an inspector for Capital Airlines, which brought the couple here.

The Gaddys actual anniversary was Monday but the official celebration will be today, when their other three children arrive from New York and Colorado.

Electrical Firm, Two Individuals Forfeit Collateral

An electrical company and two individuals each forfeited $25 yesterday after they were charged with doing work without electrical permits, Building Inspector Charles O'Connell disclosed.

He said the forfeitures were entered at the First Precinct Station by Arrow Electric Co., 2118-A 14th st. nw.; Petro Peratino, 3936 12th st. ne., and James F. Bradley, 2106 18th st. nw.

O'Connell said that he will recommend higher collateral for persons who repeat the offense of installing electric lines or apparatus in buildings without getting appropriate permits.

Accreditation Called Threat To Universities

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 24 (Spl.).—Colleges and universities are losing their academic freedom by giving in to the demands of accrediting agencies, Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of George Washington University, said here today.

Dr. Marvin, secretary of the National Commission on Accrediting, spoke before the sixty-fourth annual convention of the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools.

"Our institutions connot function as trusted, free institutions of higher learning, unless they are kept free from the interference of outside organizations that try to tell us what we must teach," Dr. Marvin said.

Under certain accrediting procedures, he said, "members of a profession set the standards for professional education in their respective fields and the quality of education is determined by the selfsame members."

He said that "accrediting seems to be in all too many instances calling for the exchange of significant amounts of academic freedom for measures that enhance the professional and too often the economic status of a select group."

Dr. Marvin said that 640 colleges and universities out of a possible 675 have joined the commission because they are concerned about accrediting.

Dr. Marvin said it has been estimated that there are now 200 agencies setting up standards to evaluate higher education.

Hunters Take to Woods So Deer Come to Town

HORNELL, N. Y., Nov. 24 (AP).—As hunters took to the woods today on the opening of the deer season in western New York, a few of the deer came to the city.

Three deer, pursued by hunters and dogs, dashed into Hornell. One leaped through a window of the Automatic Products Co., then out again. Then it crashed through a window of the Wilkins Bicycle and Gun Repair Shop where, fatigued and injured, it fell in a back room. A hunter and police shot it there. The other two deer disappeared in the residential section.

Lawyers to Debate Marital Law Topic

The subject, "Should the law compensate a woman for loss of her husband's society and companionship?" will be discussed Sunday at 10 p. m. on the District Round-Table over Radio Station WWDC.

Four Washington lawyers, Joseph D. Bulman, Edward Bennett Williams, H. Mason Welch and Wilbert McInerney, are scheduled to participate in the forum, conducted by the Junior Bar Section of the District Bar Association. Harold D. Retting of the District Bar Association, will serve as moderator.

Armed Services Hospitality Group Wants Belasco Center

The District Commissioners' Armed Services Hospitality Committee joined the American Legion yesterday in urging the reopening of the old Belasco Theater as an entertainment center for servicemen.

The theater on Lafayette Square now is filled with Treasury Department files and furniture. But departmental officials have recently let it be known they will clear the building if there is a definite demand for the center there.

The hospitality committee's indorsement of the Legion's campaign for the building also may help to wipe out another objection raised by Jess Larson, General Services Administrator.

Recently Larson wrote Maj. Gen. Harry Vaughan, military aide to President Truman, saying he thought it unwise to lease the theater to only one veterans' group. Instead, Larson suggested a "consolidation of veteran's groups organizations for the purpose of maintaining this recreational activity."

The hospitality committee has representatives of all the major veterans' groups on its board.

Mrs. Henry Gratten Doyle, chairman of the hospitality committee, wrote the D. C. commander of the Legion pledging "fullest cooperation" and promising to help "secure the release" of the building.

As promised verbally, Mrs. Doyle told Walter L. Morgan, the Legion's local commander, that her committee would accept the responsibility of establishing the general policies for the operation of the center.

These policies, she explained, would be the same as were observed by the United Nations Service Center, the hospitality committee operated during the last war.

Col. Waldron E. Leonard, District Coordinator of Veterans' Affairs, said last night he was ready and willing to do everything possible to further the program. He emphasized his belief that the center should have city-wide backing.

Another big paint firm, the Glidden Co. of Cleveland, also announced a price increase, which will average 3 percent.

One On the Aisle

Unbelievable Yarn Has Comic Cagney

By Richard L. Coe

JIMMY CAGNEY is brashly funny in one of the most wildly unbelievable yarns of the year, the Warner's new musical, "The West Point Story."

The screen play gives Jimmy and Virginia Mayo some good cracks, but the trio credited with the story surely had its imaginations working like fury.

It is a musical, so one naturally can't expect any sense in the plot, though, frankly I was mildly astonished to find it's not in Technicolor. I didn't think they made non-Technicolor musicals anymore.

Well, let's get back to the story. It seems that Jimmy is an out-of-work song and dance man who takes a job staging West Point's annual 100 Days musical show. Part of his assignment is to get the Broadway rights to the epic (for which I wouldn't give a nickel) and persuade the leading man that he should resign from the Army and Go on The Stage.

This he makes a stab at by luring a discovery of his who's since become a movie star to cause Cadet Gordon MacRae to want to marry her and hence bow out of the Point. And then go on the stage, see? To get in the groove with the cadets, Jimmy became an honorary plebe, has to do all sorts of boyish things which at his age, well, see? Then Jimmy gets the "feel" of the academy, see that it's all wrong to go 'round luring future generals OUT of the Army, and tries to redeem a situation wherein both MacRae and Gene Nelson are jailed and the show canceled.

This he does by waving a medal he won in the war, highest decoration of the French government. Since the Premier is visiting this country and since heads of states can grant amnesties to the Point, everything works out, see?

"THE WEST POINT STORY," a Warner Brothers release, produced by Louis F. Edelman, directed by Roy Del Ruth, screenplay by John Monks, Jr., Charles Hoffman and Irving Wallace from a story by Wallace. At the Warner.

THE CAST

Elwin Bixby	James Cagney

Tom Fletcher	Gordon MacRae
Hal Courtland	Gene Nelson

Harry Eberhart	Roland Winters
Bixby's Wife	Raymond Roe
Lt. Col. Martin	Wilton Graff

Sourpuss Explains

Now just to avoid being called a sourpuss, let me explain that haif of this yarn is handled with tongue in cheek, but the other half is from the great well of sentiment all patriots have about the Point. The two tones get hopelessly enmeshed, with the result that you sit determinedly on, wondering what in gravy's name they're going to think of next.

Doris Day is on tap as the girl from Hollywood who really does fall in love with the about-to-be-second-looey, see, and she's got a coupla cute songs. At a singularly inopportune moment some scenery falls on Nelson, so Cagney gets to do the show's big production number with his assistant Mayo, an unenchanting item about "B'klyn."

I'm afraid the deeper we get into this woolley adventure the sorrier it all sounds, but they do give Jimmy some salty cracks which he delivers with gusto.

PERNELL BROTHERS, Petruchio of Arena Stage's "The Taming of the Shrew," has been made a permanent member of the new acting company.

"THE RELAPSE" has opened to some hefty New York notices with Cyril Ritchard's brilliant playing getting the same kudos it did here . . . Brooks Atkinson in the Times observed that whether they played Restoration comedy as broadly in those days is beside the point, "For Mr. Ritchard's airs and graces, his stylized condescention and fripperies are vastly entertaining, which is all that anyone should expect from a comedy." . . . John Chapman in the News: "Haste you to the revels which began last night . . . a gaudy, saucy romp headed by Cyrin Ritchard, giving a fantastically and exquisitely funny impersonation . . . a night for laughter." Howard Barnes in the Herald Tribune headed his "Elegant Resurrection," going on to point out that though the play is archaic, the revival is "a signal tour de force, . . . accomplished with elegance and considerable elan."

"THE CONSUL" is now set for a one-week only stay at the Gayety starting December 11, with Patricia Neway heading the cast.

GENE KLAVAN takes his "Capital Punishment" broadcast audience back to Arena Stage tonight, going out on WTOP from 12:30 till 2.

THAT FAMED warhorse of the classics, "The Cabinet of Dr. Caligari," first of the screen's chillers, will be revived again tonight at the Institute of Contemporary Arts, 1322 New York ave., going on at 8:40.

CLASS OF '51, Washington-Lee High is rehearsing "Excursion" for production next Friday and Saturday nights at the Arlington school's auditorium.

CANADA'S National Film Board is presenting an hour of short subjects this afternoon at the National Gallery of Art, now showing a collection of Canadian paintings. . . . On the program will be: "Klee Wyck," a film about Emily Carr, known for her interest in the Canadian Indians; "West Wind," about the far north's Tom Thompson, and "Primitive Paintings of Charlevoix," devoted to French-Canadian artists.

COUNTRY NIGHT is scheduled tonight at the Arlington Jewish Center, Lee blvd. at Fenwick st., with Nicholas J. Baker calling for the square dances, to be set off by a three-piece band: fiddler, guitarist and jack-of-all trades doubling on saw, washboard, comb or whatever.

Exhibit to Illustrate Effects of Tuberculosis

The featured December exhibit at the Medical Museum of the Armed Forces Institute of Pathology, will show the consequences of tuberculosis.

Specimens and illustrative materials for the exhibit will depict effects of the disease on the different organs of the body. The museum, at 9th st. and Independence ave. sw., is open daily from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m.

Masonic Service at Class

A special Masonic service will be held by the Vaughn Bible Class of Calvary Baptist Church Sunday at 10 a. m. in Vaughn Class Hall, 8th and H sts. nw. The Rev. Idris W. Jones, teacher of the class and member of St. John's Lodge, No. 11, will present the lesson.

"BILLIE DAWN" GETS MORE LEARNIN': Judy Holliday, who stars as Billie Dawn, the dumb blonde who learns about life in Washington in the Gayety's "Born Yesterday," paid a visit to The Washington Post's new pressroom yesterday under expert guidance. Here is Managing Editor J. Russell Wiggins showing the star how the presses roll. During a scene of the play audiences watch Judy getting her international culture from pages of The Washington Post

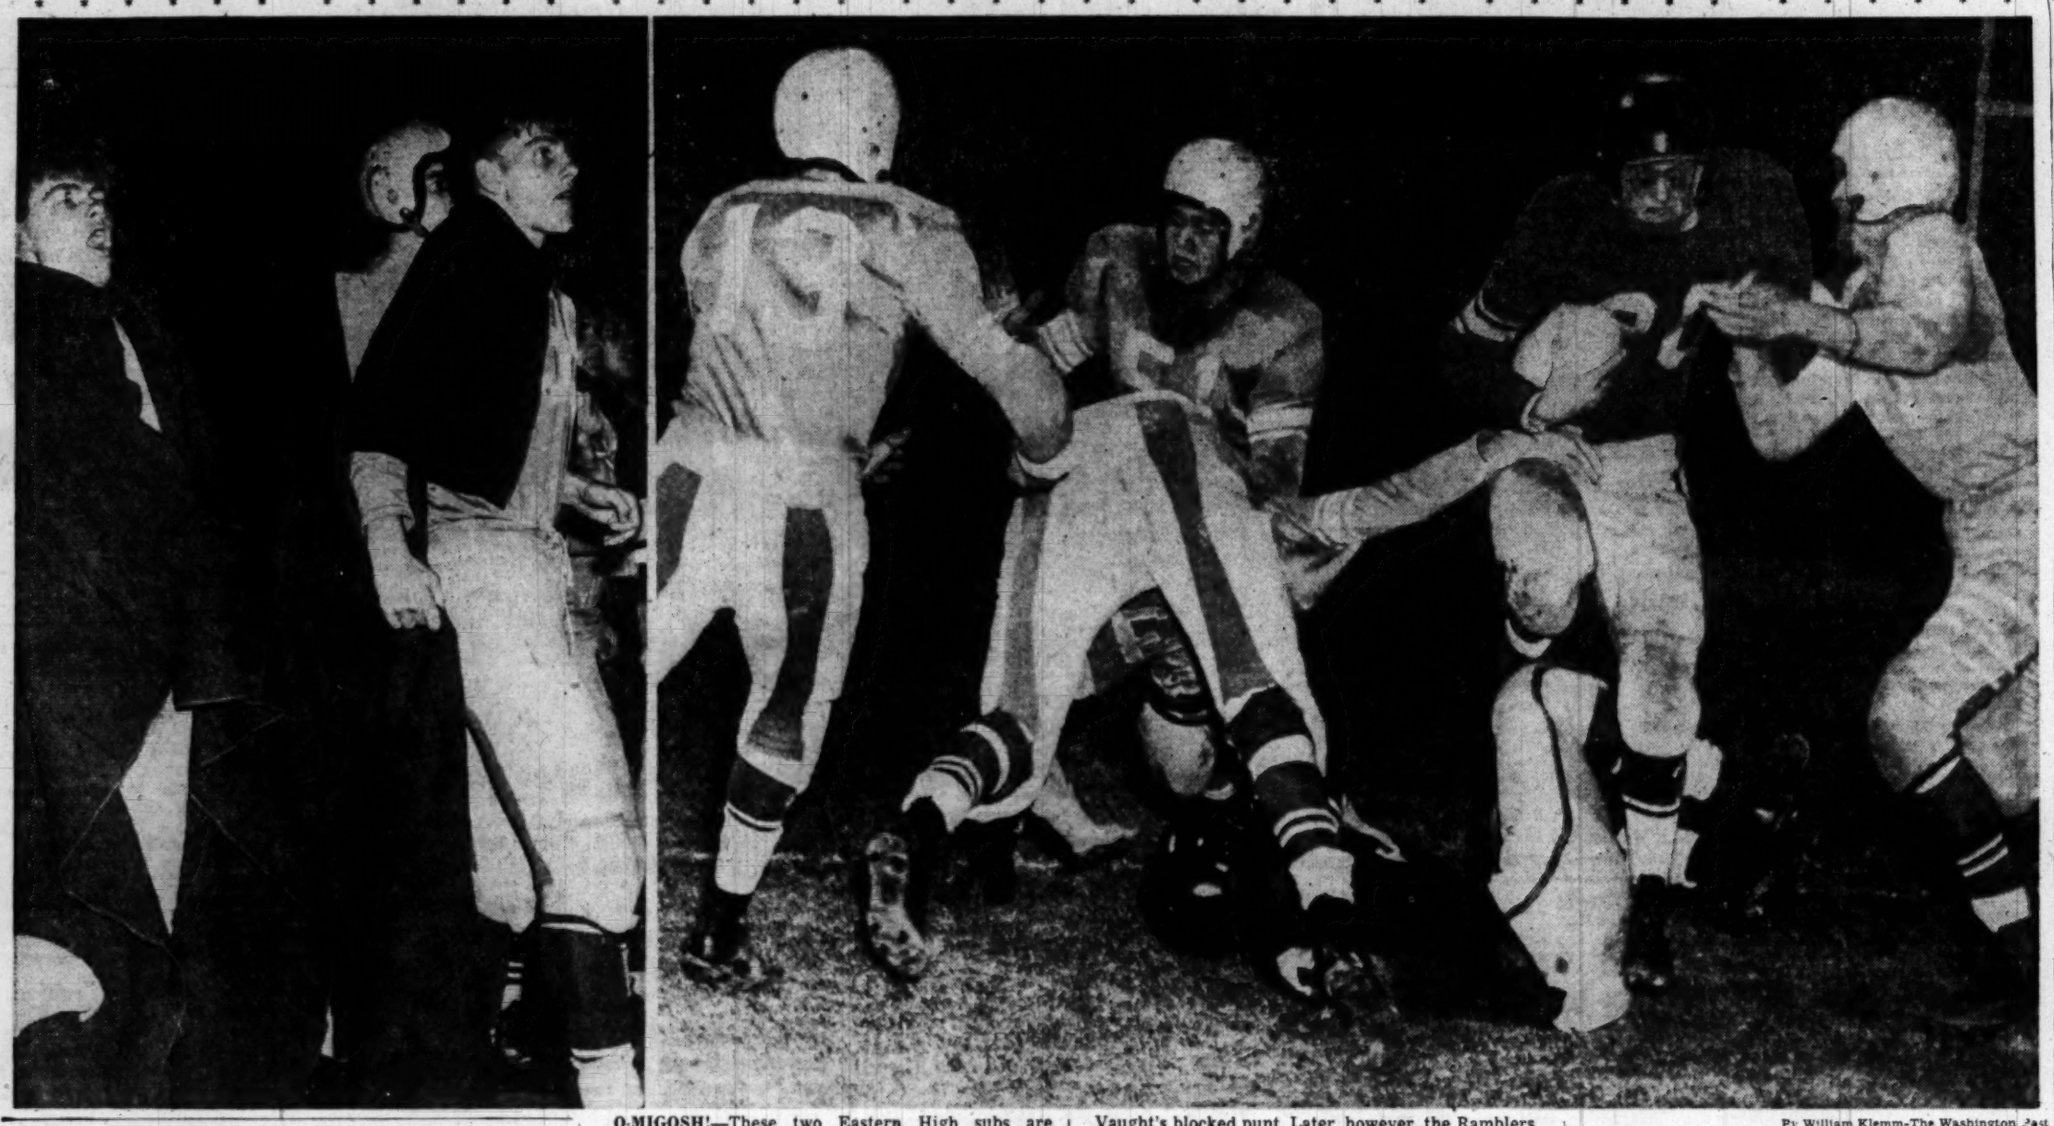
Eastern Overpowers Tech, 20-6, and Takes Title



O-MIGOSH!—These two Eastern High subs are brought to their feet in the first quarter of last night's Interhigh championship game at Griffith Stadium as they watch McKinley Tech grab a 6-0 lead on Danny Vaught's blocked punt. Later, however, the Ramblers relaxed as they rolled to a 20-6 victory. On the right, Tech's Stan Kernan finds the hole he thought he saw in the Eastern line suddenly isn't and is smeared at the line of scrimmage by Richie Ward, of Eastern. Bob Murray (51) and Jimmy Rinehart (13) hang around to supply Ward with help

Sita, O'Neill And Lampiris Stand Out On Ramblers

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

The big, tough Eastern Ramblers bulled to their first Interhigh football championship in five years as they smashed down McKinley Tech's Trainers, 20-6, at Griffith Stadium last night.

A crowd of 9113 paying customers stayed during a light last-half rain and saw some handsome running and passing by Eastern's Ralph Sita and a lot of sharp defensive play by Eastern Center Spencer Lampiris.

STATISTICS

Eastern		McKinley
18	First downs	5
229	Yards rushing (net)	52
72	Yards passing	58
8	Passes attempted	15
3	Passes completed	6
1	Passes intercepted by	0
5	Punts	6
32.4	Punting average	26.5
0	Fumbles lost	0
40	Yards lost, penalties	10

Tech scored in the first five minutes when Guard Danny Vaught blocked a punt and End Joe Rice picked it up and raced 10 yards for a touchdown. Except for a 40-yard pass play from John Wege to Dick Sutton that helped move Tech to Eastern's 14-yard line in the second quarter, that was the Trainers' only show of strength.

229 Yards to 52

Eastern's big line spilled Tech's single wing, stopping the Trainers' fine runners, Stan Kernan and Benny Colandero. The Rambler forwards pushed Tech around and were largely responsible for Eastern's 229 to 52 yards advantage in ground gaining.

Sita, grabbing wide pitch-outs from Quarterbacks Tom McHan and Jim Sullivan and sweeping the ends, gained 112 yards in 22 running attempts. And he completed three out of four of his lefthanded passes for 74 more yards. He scored a touchdown and helped set up two others which were carried over by big Danny O'Neill.

Lampiris was making tackles all over the place. His most timely contributions were three consecutive tackles when Tech was threatening to break a 6-6 tie on the Rambler 14 in the second quarter.

Opening Drive Stopped

Eastern took the opening kickoff and appeared to be goalward bound with a ground attack that moved 30 yards to Tech's 45. However, Eastern got a little careless with its ball handling, lost on a couple of plays, and a roughing penalty pushed the Ramblers back to their own 33.

Dave Keys, Eastern's heralded field goal kicker, stepped back to quick-kick, but Vaught was in like a flash, blocking the punt with his chest, chasing it back to the 10. Teammate Rice beat him to it, picked it up in stride and scored. Bryant Hopkins' placement was low and Tech led, 6-0.

Eastern tied it up later in the first quarter with a 47-yard drive, negotiated in six plays. Sita picked up 13 in one sweep, McHan went through the middle for nine, Jim Rhinehart circled end for seven, and 190-pound O'Neill smacked to the three. O'Neill then pushed through right guard for the score.

Keys stepped back to place kick the extra point but McHan fumbled the pass from center and the kick was blocked.

It stayed 6-6 with no threats

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 24—Nor cold, nor Kentucky, nor snow (6 inches of it) tonight is impeding the high belief of Tennessee folks in the wonders that Coach Bob Neyland can work. Fifty-one thousand strong, they'll be in the stadium for tomorrow's game.

As worshipful Knoxville folks will tell you, they don't bet on football games down here—they bet on coaches, and unbeaten Kentucky has not yet encountered Neyland.

POVICH

Young Paul Bryant and his Wildcats arrived by plane today to learn that they'd be playing Neyland's team on a frozen field. Tennessee officials commandeered thousands of whelbarrows to get the thick blanket of snow left by last night's storm, off the taurpaulin. The next trick is to get the covering unstuck from the gridiron.

Both the weather and the avidity with which Tennesseans gobbled up the seven-point odds offered earlier in the week has had its effect on the wagering. The odds against the Vols dropped to six points yesterday and then everybody got wary with news of the snow-crusted gridiron.

THE WILDCATS, now aiming at a bid to the Orange Bowl, have swept to ten straight wins and the Southeastern Conference title, but in the craw of Kentuckians is a disturbing fact—they've never beaten a Neyland-coached Tennessee team in 19 seasons.

Tomorrow, they'll be trying it with their brightest backfield star in a couple of decades—Vito Parilli, the forward passing star from Rochester, Pa., who has pitched 23 touchdown aerials and operates from Bryant's T-formation.

Parilli works chiefly with Bill Leskovar, the Wildcats' 195-pound fullback, who may be restrained tomorrow with the recurrence of an old groin injury. In which case, Cliff Lawson, 174-pound junior will get the fullback role.

In Knoxville, the pre-game exuberance for Tennessee's chances is understandable enough. They remember when the Vols were a 14-point underdog last year, and then smothered the Wildcats' high-powered attackers to pull out with a 6-0 victory that was typical of Neyland's master defense tactics.

PARILLI'S talents are recognized in Knoxville, but discounted by the man on the street where they talk football like coaches. "Neyland always comes up with a defense for those one-shot specialists," they tell you. "He's been working against Parilli for a month."

Twelve thousand Kentucky rooters, who were due to be on the road today and tonight by auto, may not make it, incidentally. The highways leading out of Lexington and Louisville are blocked by snow, and train service is also slowed.

Those fans who do get to the ball park will be sitting on snow. Tennesse authorities tonight declared, "We can get most of the stuff off the field, but it's impossible to clear the seats."

Only an early-season upset at the hands of Mississippi State mars Tennessee's 1950 record, which already has earned it the Cotton Bowl bid against Texas. The Vols bounded back from that one to turn loose the most devastating offense of Neyland's career at Tennessee.

TENNESSEE has been winning by scores in contrast to Neyland tradition of one and two touchdown victories—and it's a departure from the old off-tackle power drives that used to get the Vols the one or two scores they like to sit on.

Neyland has been opening up with stuff that is practically bizarre for Neyland—bucks, laterals and sweeps, handled mostly by Hank Lauricella, his good tailback, and Andy Kozar, 190-pound fullback, another Pennsylvania boy among the host from that State who have been impressed with the high cultural and academic advantages of Dixie institutions.

For Neyland, the game has a personal sort of importance, they tell you in Knoxville. Whatever the reason, his relations with Coach Paul Bryant are strained somewhat, and a couple of years back he ventured, "As long as I am at Tennessee, a Bryant team will never beat me."

Miami Beats Iowa, Remains Unbeaten, 14-6

By Gene Plowden

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 24 (AP).—The University of Miami Hurricanes turned back a stubborn University of Iowa eleven, 14-6, before 44,999 in the Orange Bowl tonight to remain undefeated but with one tie in nine games.

Both teams pushed over a touchdown in the first period and Miami added another in the second to stay ahead. Gordon Watson converted after both Miami touchdowns.

Iowa brought five Negroes to Miami and all of them saw action in the game—the first time in history Negroes have competed with whites in a football game in Miami.

Bernie Bennett, 18-year-old 175-pound Negro back, scored the Hawkeyes' only touchdown when he skirted right end from the six.

L. S. U. Outlasts Villanova, 13 to 7

BATON ROUGE, La., Nov. 24 (AP).—Louisiana State grabbed an early lead and hung on to down upsurging Villanova, 13-7, here tonight in an intersectional football game played in freezing weather.

Some 10,000 shivering fans sat through 30-degree temperature to watch LSU take advantage of Villanova fumbles, then stave off a late rally to keep ahead.

Two fumbles in the opening period, both by Villanova Fullback Pete D'Alnozo, gave LSU a shot at paydirt. The touchdown came on a 16-yard pass, Quarterback Jim Barton to End Ralph McLeod.

LSU's second tally was scored by Barton on a 1-yard quarterback sneak. Barton set the stage for it with a 34-yard pass to end Warren Virgets. Kenny Konz place kicked the extra point.

Villanova's lone touchdown climaxed a 97-yard march. Rilo tallied on a 6-yard pass from Quarterback Neil O'Boyle. Haner converted.

Brothers Wins Semiwindup on Walcott Fight

NEW YORK, Nov. 24 (AP).—Elkins Brothers, a 190¾-pound belter from Washington, edged Omleio Agramonte, 192, Havana, in a savage, free-swinging eight-round semifinal to the Joe Walcott-Rex Layne fight at Madison Square Garden tonight.

Saved by the bell after a count of five in the seventh, Brothers won when Agramonte was penalized the eighth because of illegal use of his shoulder in clinches.

A looping right by Omleio crashed Brothers to the canvas just before the bell in the seventh. The bell rang at five. He got up and fell against the ropes as his seconds hustled him to his corner.

New Respect From Coach

Mentzer Tells Eastern Boys to Charge, They Go Out and Take Charge in 2d Half

By Bill Gilbert

Eastern's Ramblers gained new respect from their coach, Dick Mentzer, by virtue of their 20-6 triumph over McKinley Tech for the Interhigh League campionship last night at Griffith Stadium . . . Mentzer told is team in the dressing room at halftime, when the score was tied, 6-6, that the boys could win if they started charging . . . They did. Dick thought his line won for him in the last two quarters . . . The champs' coach said, "the boys really got started in the second half. Our backers-up, Danny O'Neill and Spencer Lampiris, did a wonderful job in helping stop Tech."

Though it was not needed as things turned out, Eastern lost an excellent scoring opportunity at the fag end of the second quarter, when two Ralph Sita passes carried the Ramblers to the Tech 15 . . Those passes, plus one running play required two minutes and time ran out of the Ramblers, who forgot to take time out to stop the clock. Eastern students seated in the center field bleachers showed they were pulling hard when the Ramblers marched to the Tech 7 in the third period . . . the kids stood up and cheered, almost unaware that they were witnessing the proceedings in a downpour . . . they waited until a time-out before they scampered for shelter . . . Dixie Howell, who played guard on Eastern's championship team of 1944, journeyed up from Carrollton, Ga., where he is a high school coach, to see his alma mater perform . . . Dixie, who also played for George Washington U., will make it a clean sweep this afternoon by attending the GW-Georgetown game.

Jim Gibbons, handling the by-play over the public address system, found it difficult to be heard whenever Eeastern's Ramblers were enjoying success. Rambler students reacted by

Marines Give High Game Fans Treat

By Jules Loh

Despite all military tradition of using a slang expression to describe any and every operation, the Marines say just what they mean.

When Second Lieut. Floyd G. Hudson's crack drill team, which put on that superb half-time show at last night's Eastern-Tech High title game, chose to name their first maneuver "In Confusion," they were as precise as precise can get.

It looked like the greatest military miscue of the century when the two dozen cooks, clerks, janitors, and truck drivers—which is what the squad was composed of—took the field.

Apparently nobody knew where to go. They all suddenly started walking every which way, crossing in front of each other, and what not.

Then just as suddenly they were all back in line again. How they found out where they belonged is still a mystery.

"In confusion," is the only way to describe it.

3 Georgetown Regulars Out With Injuries

It's Georgetown vs. George Washington at 2 p. m. today at Griffith Stadium in the nineteenth renewal of their city football rivalry.

Experts rate it a toss-up even though G. W. has been idle since its Furman game two weeks ago, while Georgetown is tired and without three of its regulars.

G. W., led by its versatile tailback Andy Davis, needs to win this one to close with its first winning season in four years. The Colonials have won four, lost four. Georgetown, depending on the passing of Quarterback Frank Mattingly, could salvage at least some prestige out of an otherwise drab season by knocking off the Colonials. The Hoyas are 2-6 for the year.

Georgetown holds a wide edge

Utah Farmboy, 5-1 Shot, Upsets Joe Walcott

By Jack Hand

NEW YORK, Nov. 24 (AP).—Young Rex Layne, a blood-splotched farm boy from Lewiston, Utah, scored the fight upset of the year tonight with a unanimous 10-round decision over cagy old Jersey Joe Walcott, Camden, N. J., veteran. Layne, a 5 to 1 underdog, weighed 192, Walcott 200.

Fans surged to ringside to cheer the 22-year-old kid, who only started fighting pro 18 months ago. He whipped 37-year-old Jersey Joe all the way.

His left eye a red circle of blood from the fourth round on, Layne carried a relentless body attack to the tired veteran. Jersey Joe never showed anything like the form he displayed in his two fights with Joe Louis in 1947 and 1948.

The two judges, Frank Forbes and Bert Grant scored the fight the same way with Layne a 6-3 winner with one even. Referee Ruby Goldstein gave it to Layne 6-2 with two even. Walcott lost the eighth round for backhand punching after two warnings.

Layne's New York debut, witnessed by only 5995 fans who contributed but $19,676, boosted him among the top ranks of the young heavyweights. It was only his twenty-ninth fight and he has lost only once.

The kid was obviously tight and nervous in the first round, a little awed by Walcott's reputation. But that was the only time. He bulled to the attack from the second round on, winging that straight right under the heart until Jersey Joe had to hold on.

A good looking, curly-haired lad who used to work on his dad's sugar beet farm in Utah, Layne easily weathered Walcott's periodic spurts. He bulled his man to the ropes, manhandled him in the clinches.

Hardly another Dempsey, but still a mighty promising young fighter, the kid made a fine impression on those who were present.

In the dressing room, Layne explained his plan of attack.

"I went out to bust his guts from the start," he said. "And I guess I did. He never hurt me."

Eastern Told To Charge —and Does pounding their feet on the bleacher stands whenever Eastern made a sizeable gain. The noise sounded like a train was rumbling down Florida ave.

SIRENS SOUNDED and the air was filled with blue and white streaks of crepe paper when Danny O'Neill, Eastern fullback, plowed over from the three. Fans were dressed warm, wearing two topcoats and carrying blankets, expecting colder weather.

A student from Eastern, which is almost on the southeast border of Washington, displayed his sentiments by waving the Confederate stars and bars. During one time-out, Tech's Frank Sullivan had to set up the ball for a kickoff Corps School at Quantico, even though the band was seated on the opposite side of the field.

What the hell's a little rain? Thinking back, it's absolutely nothing to a Marine. Especially to the assistant commandant of the Marine Corps, Maj. Gen. Mervin Silverton, who made the remark as he was getting drenched in his upper-stand box, refusing to budge while others were moving in droves to shelter during sudden showers at last night's game.

Concerning the game, the General said:

"Never before have I seen so much enthusiasm. Not only among the teams, but the rooters and cheer leaders. The only event that provokes this spontaneous enthusiasm is a high school game. And what a game this one is.

"I don't believe I've ever seen a high school boy kick a football like that Stan Kernan of Tech."

General Silverton is qualified to editorialize on the quality of football.

Te used to be some shucks of a halfback on the Minneapolis Beavers, a semipro team, back in 1914, '15 and '16.

Shoemaker Pulls Nearer to Culmone

By The Associated Press

Jockey Willie Shoemaker drew slightly closer to Joe Culmone in their duel for national riding honors yesterday by winning races at Hollywood Park, while Culmone was capturing two at Bowie. Culmone now leads by four, 343 to 339.

Here's how they stand for the year:

Culmone	1494	343	262	189
Shoemaker	1445	339	234	200

Board Bars Bets on Match Race Monday

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

BOWIE, Nov. 24—As a turf news center Bowie was buzzing today. For instance:

(1) Henry H. Hecht's The Pincher drove to victory in the fifteenth running of the $10,000 added W. P. Burch Memorial Handicap, getting up in the final jump.

(2) Joe Culmone continued his sensational riding, getting two winners to make the national score, 343 to 336, with Willie Shoemaker still to be heard from on the Cost.

(3) Definite assurance that Shoemaker would be here for his clash with Culmone on Monday was given Bowie officials by Bert with Coast representative of the Jockey's Guild.

(4) The Maryland Racing Commission refused to allow betting on the two-horse, head-to-head batle of the rivals bue granted permission for the clash as an exhibition.

The Pincher was one of three horses who drove at the finish line after Jan Burke's Magic Words, with Culmone up, stopped 20 yards from the end after setting the pace to that point.

Ridden by Jockey Samuel Boulmetis, The Pincher won by a head margin, in the three-way photo. H. T. Carling's Duke's Gal was second and a neck in advance of Cross Bell Ranch's American Glory.

With Magic Words drawing most of the mutuel backing, The Pincher returned an $8.60 mutuel to supporters in a crowd of 8282. With a fast track under him, the 4-year-old turned in his sixth victory in 13 starts this year.

Although the feature escaped him, Culmone won the third race with Jungle Gypsy, a $5.60 favorite, owned by Joe Tucci whose Bob Considine took yesterday's Endurance Handicap when Culmone's mount, Bold, was disqualified.

Joe came back in the fourth, to score with T. H. Heard's Seventy-Seven which returned a $10.20 mutuel. The Sicilian youth put up a strong ride to lead Mrs. Henry Hecht's Miss Dow into the wire.

Culmone was second in two other races. One horse failed to get up in time and another faltered after setting the pace.

The Culmone-Shoemaker race Monday will be the seventh on Monday at a mile will be the seventh on the nine-race card. The winning horse will take a $1250 purse in the test to be known as the Bowie Special, an invitation only affair which will be an annual feature here.

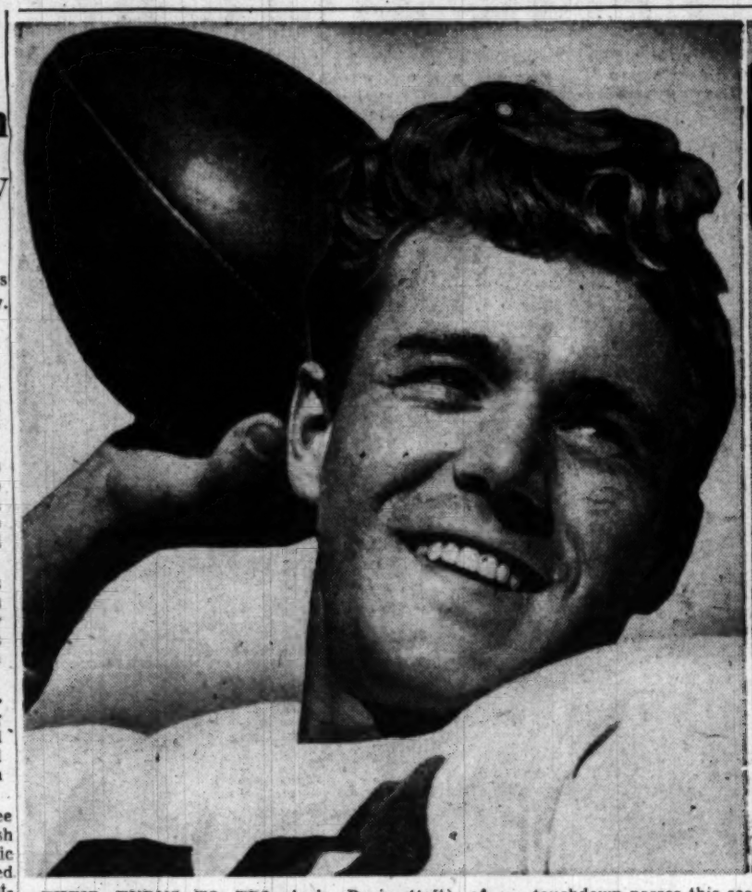
Racing Secretary John Turner, sr., selected James Jenkins' Chiloe 2d and Mrs. Tilyou Christopher's Curruhuinca for the big race, both, by coincidence Agrentine-breds. The riders will draw for the mounts.

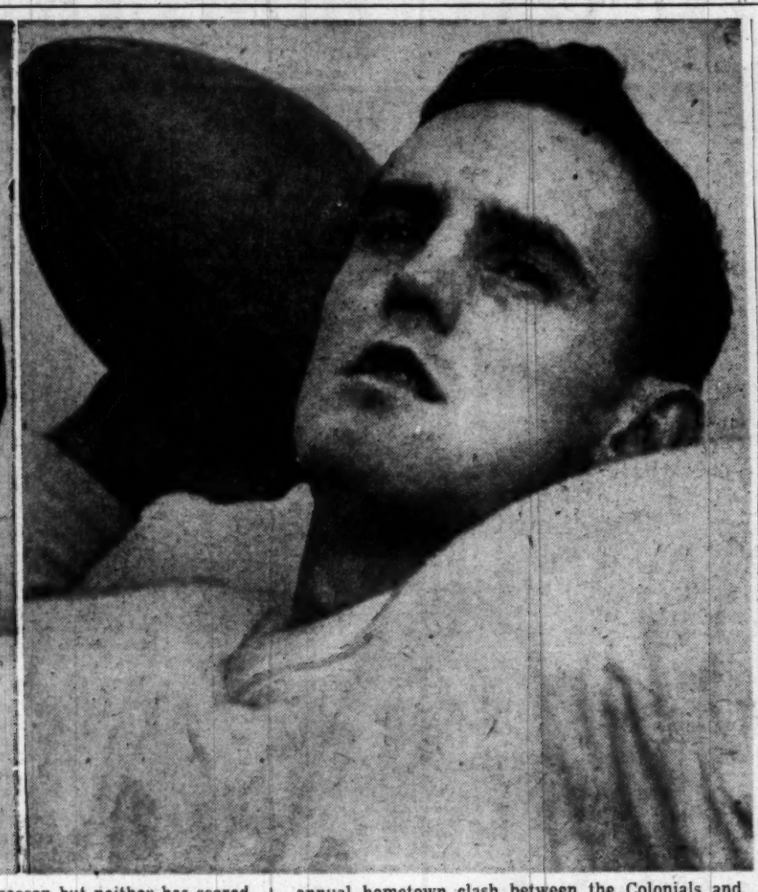
Bowie's management will present both boys with gold watches as mementos while the Maryland Racing Writers' Association will give the winning rider a silver plate.

Jockey Agent Arthur (Frenchy) Bowen was obtaining mounts for Shoemaker for Monday. The only horseman assured the Texas boy's services, however, is Trainer F. D. Christmas, who technically draws Shoemaker here to ride his Milk War, providing the horse is in action.

To all other horsemen, Bowen was giving a "second call," at the insistence of Harry Silbert, Shoemaker's agent. Apparently the West Coast boy wants to assure himself the best possible mounts after a personal study of the Monday entries which close tomorrow.

Shoemaker will fly to New York, then come to Baltimore. He will be in Washington, however, for most of his stay. Press and radio personnel will get acquainted with both Shoemaker and Culmone at a reception Sunday afternoon.





THEIR TURNS TO TD?—Andy Davis (left) of George Washington University and Frank Mattingly (right) of Georgetown University have thrown many touchdown passes this season but neither has scored a touchdown himself. Maybe both will reverse matters and be on the scoring end today in Washington's annual hometown clash between the Colonials and Hoyas at Griffith Stadium this afternoon. The game is rated toss-up as the two end their season

Baugh Back

Brown Again Vetoes Mont As Player

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

The Redskins yesterday lost a quarterback they hoped to gain and gained a quarterback they thought they lost.

They learned, in quick succession, that Sammy Baugh will be available for Sunday's game against the Baltimore Colts here, but that Tommy Mont won't be.

Baugh, feared out for the season with an achin' back, reported the misery is gone and he'll be ready to spell Harry Gilmer in tomorrow's Griffith Stadium battle of the tail-enders.

For the second time in two weeks, Coach Paul Brown of Cleveland, nixed the Redskins' plans to remove Mont from their coaching ranks and suit him up for a game. Unanimous consent of the NFL teams must be obtained to permit a coach to play once the season has started.

Last week Brown, whose Clevelanders are pacing the American Conference, vetoed a Redskins' request which would have permitted Mont to play against them in Cleveland.

Brown, apparently not wishing to set a precedent, ruled out Mont for Sunday's Colts game although the Colts themselves offered no objection.

Obviously convinced by now that when Brown says no he means just plain no, Redskins President George Marshall said that was the last request he'd make in Mont's behalf.

After the Colts game, the Redskins have only two more skirmishes left. They meet the Steelers in Pittsburgh December 3 and close out their dismal season against Cleveland here December 10.

IN SHORT—Fullback Johnny Papit, of Virginia, whom the Redskins are very interested in, was a weekend visitor and will be the guest of the Redskins at tomorrow's game . . . Tackle Lauri Niemi and Fullback Pete Stout, both suffering leg injuries, will not suit up Sunday. Niemi is definitely out for the season but Stout may be back in time for the finale against Cleveland . .

Hoyas-GW Rated Tossup

Colonials Shooting For Winning Year

in the series which dates back to 1898. The Hoyas have beaten G. W. 14 times against only two losses and two ties. However, those two G. W. victories have come in the last two years, and were engineered by Mr. Davis.

Davis has been rated among the Nation's top 20 passers for three seasons, but it's as a runner that he has distinguished himself in the last two games against Georgetown. Last year he ran up 135 yards on the ground.

Mattingly had a rough time of it in last year's 27-7 loss to G. W. He completed only six out of 21 passes and had four of them intercepted.

Mattingly will have some new backfield helpmates today in sophomores Bugs Thompson, Ralph Charney and Gino Pagluica. Thompson, a fleet-footed halfback, was a teammate of Davis at McKinley Tech High in 1945. In the Fordham game a couple of weeks ago he ran 67 yards for a touchdown. Pagluica, 190-pound fullback, takes care of most of Georgetown's inside running assignments.

Charney was the big wheel in last week's 20-14 victory over Holy Cross.

Dick Doyle and Terry Murphy, who usually play the halfback spots for Georgetown, won't suit up, nor will Jack Dunn, a regular tackle. Doyle has a fractured vertebra, Murphy had a knee operation the other day, and Dunn is through for the year with a head injury.

It's Mattingly Against Davis

It's the last game of the year for both teams, and for 10 Colonials and 10 Hoyas, it's the last game of their college days.

G. W. seniors are Charlie Butler, Bill Szanyi, Charlie Jones, Jim Feula, Clarence Drayer, Charlie Gunner, Tal Dredge, Art Kojoyian, Jimmy Kline and Pete Cordelli.

Homecoming, Too

Woodberry, Episcopal Play Today

Woodberry Forest, Va., Nov. 24. Tomorrow will be one of the biggest days in Woodberry Forest's football history.

On Homecoming Day it celebrates its fiftieth anniversary of its series with Episcopal High of Alexandria, one of the oldest rivals in the country.

And the series is all tied up with 23 victories each and 3 ties.

Episcopal's Maroons, with six victories, a loss and a tie, this season, will be favored over the Tigers, who have lost three of their seven starts.

The Maroons will rely on a couple of Athens, Ga. boys—Jere Michael, their high scorer, and Jim Thornton, fullback.

Ted Merry, from Spring Hill, Ala., could be the difference between the two squads. Merry is the team's placement expert, adding 21 points after touchdowns in 25 attempts.

Caps Lure Fans With Girls, Music

By Dave Heller
Post Reporter

In an effort to boost lagging attendance, the Washington Caps will offer fans a girls basketball game and a hillbilly singer tonight in addition to their contest with the Syracuse Nationals at Uline Arena.

Sholl's Cafeteria girl's team will meet the First Baptist girls in a preliminary game at 7:15, and between halves Singer Ben Simpson will give out with the rural rhythm in a series of hillbilly ballads.

The serious business of the evening, however, will be the effort of the local basketeers to keep alive their drive from the basement of the National Basketball Association's Eastern Division.

The Caps have won three of their last five games and will be after their third straight at home.

Washington hopes tonight will depend a lot on their two outsize players, little Freddie Scolari and big Don Otten.

If the 7-foot Otten continues to improve in his under-the-basket play as he has in the past three contests and if the 5-foot, 10-inch Scolari has his weather eye on the basket, the locals will be a hard team to beat. Scolari leads Washington scorers with 183 points.

Syracuse has a 5-5 record. The Caps have won five and lost eight games.

DEAR FOLKS:

Bookmakers, if any have survived current investigations, probably will erect a monument to Jockey Bobby Martin for claiming the foul that disqualified Brookmeade's Bold on the Thursday program. With Joe Culmone already home on two of the stable's odds-on favorites earlier on the card, Bold must have had a trillion probably will erect a monuworld bets on him. The action of some persons in blocking Willie Shoemaker's original desire to fly East, just goes to show that they did not recognize a banner chance to gain good will for racing. When the public began being heard from, these guys made an about face but they already had done plenty of damage. The least excited fellow connected with the thing is Culmone, who by the way, pronounces his name with the "E" silent. See you on the rail.

Sugar Bowl Picks Today

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 24 (AP).—Look for the Sugar Bowl to name Kentucky and possibly Oklahoma tomorrow to play in the 1951 New Year's Day football classic here.

The Sugar Bowl said today that an announcement will be made at 6 p. m. tomorrow, but of course did not name the team or teams that may get invitations.

However, there is little doubt that Kentucky will get the bid, barring a one-sided defeat at the hands of Cotton Bowl bound Tennessee. The Kentucky-Tennessee game will be history when the announcement comes.

American U. Opens With Alumni

American University's Mason-Dixon Conference basketball champions will open their season tonight at the AU fieldhouse in the annual game with the Alumni.

The Alumni are loaded with talent, including five former Eagle captains, but the varsity with four of five former starters back this season, is favored. The Homecoming Queen will be crowned at intermission.

Eastern Whips Tech for Title on either side until late in the second period. Then Wege uncorked a beautiful pass to Sutton on the Eastern 22. The ball traveled more than 40 yards in the air. A Wege to John Hobbs to Stan Kernan double hand off got Tech a first down at the 14 but Lampiris roused the Eastern line, and the Trainers were stopped.

There were 50 seconds left and with Sita running and passing, the Ramblers went 69 yards to Tech's 15 before time ran out.

Eastern broke the game wide open in the third quarter with two touchdowns. Tackle Pat Murphy set up the first one by blocking a kick by Tech's Kernan. End Barry Taylor recovered on Tech's 18. In seven line smashes, Sita and O'Neill moved to the four. Sita went wide around left end, shaking off Fred Maloney and scoring. Keys converted, and it was 13-6, Eastern.

The next time it got the ball, Eastern went 48 yards for another touchdown. Again O'Neill and Sita led the way. First O'Neill picked up 10 yards, then Sita got 13. O'Neill got nine and Sita six. Finally, from the one-foot line, O'Neill smashed over right guard to score. Keys converted.

That was just about all. Both teams were slowed down by the rain. Late in the fourth quarter, Tech got to midfield after a 27-yard advance, but McHan intercepted a pass by Colandreo and the gun sounded shortly afterward.

MarylandPark Takes County Crown, 25-0

Maryland Park High wrapped up the Prince Georges County football title last night, trouncing Mount Rainier, 25-0, at Byrd Stadium on the University of Maryland campus.

The victory ended the season for the Trojans and gave them a seven won, three lost record. In league competition, Maryland Park won five without defeat.

John Carlucci scored in the first quarter for Maryland Park, taking a punt on the Mounts 33-yard line and squirming his way over the goal.

Two more Trojan touchdowns came in the second quarter. Larry Mayhew galloped 63 yards for one, and End Bob Hampton blocked a kick and recovered it in the end zone for another.

The final Maryland Park score came in the third quarter when Roy Kidwell took a 21-yard pass from Carlucci over the goal. Maryland Park lost 225 yards on penalties and had two touchdowns called back.

take without anybody noticing it."

When they finished that operation, they did a "drive shaft." The men form a line between two circles. The circles turn so that it looks like they are moving the line of men, like washing machine rollers move and wring out a wet bath towel. Or like gears move a drive shaft.

Then they went into a "cartwheel," an outer circle of men move counter clockwise, while an inner circle moves clockwise.

Next they form a straight line about 25 yards long, and spun their rifles off their shoulders, winding up in a kneeling position, with the business end of the gun facing the ground. They call this a "rifle toss," and do it one man right after the other, like a wave rolling down hte field.

Amazing part about the whole 10-minute operation that it was done without commands.

The only order Platoon Sergeant James W. Jones gave his men was "forward march."

It is done by a counting method. Each man counts his steps. And each one of the 24 men have different counts. They only practice four hours a week, and at the end of about two months are ready to perform in public.

Assistant commandant of the Marine Corps, Maj. Gen. Mervin Silverton, who viewed the spectacle from his upper stand box, stated, "their precision is just a little short of perfect." It makes a poor civilian wonder what the Marines regard as perfect.

Autumn Stake Runs at Bowie

BOWIE, Md., Nov. 24.—Bowie's big holiday weekend of racing continues today with the $10,000 Prince Georges Autumn Handicap which has drawn nine starters, including the Hasty House Farm's hard hitting pair of Inseparable and Seaward.

This pair dominated last Saturday's Lynch Memorial and will be favored tomorrow to repeat in the mile and sixteenth feature, which is at the same distance.

Seven of the nine horses entered ran in the Lynch. In addition to Inseparable and Seaward, High Trend which finished third, Friendly Frank, fifth, Brick, sixth, Abstract, seventh, and Laico, ninth, are in the lineup.

Meets Michigan

Ohio State Shooting for Big 10 Title

By Gayle Talbot

NEW YORK, Nov. 24 (AP).—The Old South for the first time this season takes over the national football spotlight tomorrow with the meeting of its two outstanding powers, Kentucky and Tennessee, at Knoxville.

The Mid-West also shares the attention of football fans with three of tomorrow's four final Big Ten football battles crammed with Rose Bowl complications and two holding the key to the conference title.

Both Rose Bowl and title pressure will be dramatically exerted on the Michigan at Ohio State and the Illinois at Northwestern showdowns, while the Minnesota at Wisconsin clash has a bowl bounce to it.

The fourth league finale is at Lafayette, Ind., betwen Indiana and Purdue for the hallowed Old Oaken Bucket, but not much else.

At Columbus, Ohio, 83,000 fans will watch Ohio State (5-1) and Michigan (3-1-1) collide in a traditional scrap that is spiced by the Buckeyes' bid for the championship and the Wolverines' stab for a bowl bid and possibl, the title. Ohio State is ineligible for a Rose Bowl return.

At Evanston, Ill., Northwestern (2-3) stands as the only hurdle to favored Illinois' (4-1) effort to become the first modern Big Ten repeater in the Rose Bowl. A capacity 54,000 will see the neighborhood squabble at Dyche Stadium.

An Illini triumph will almost clinch a bowl bid for Coach Ray Eliot's club which trounced UCLA, 45-14, in the Big Ten-PCC bowl inaugural of 1947. Illinois also can win the conference title if Michigan spills Ohio State.

Barring an upset, the setting sun should see the all-winning California Bears, champions of the Pacific Coast for the third straight time and safely elected to face the Big Ten team in the Rose Bowl. All the Bears have to do is subdue Stanford in their annual classic before 81,000 at Berkeley. They are heavily favored.

The Oklahoma Sooners, sporting 29 straight victories and harboring designs on another trip to the Sugar Bowl, face the tough Nebraska Cornhuskers at Norman.

The Huskers and their great sophomore running back, Bob Reynolds, will not lack incentive. A victory would haul them up into a tie with Oklahoma for the big seven leadership and almost certainly would bring them a flood of bowl offers, including one from New Orleans.

Two fine eastern elevens, Princeton and Pennsylvania, are expected to close highly successful seasons against Dartmouth and Cornell, respectively. Neither has met defeat within the Ivy League and neither, unfortunately, will be permitted to play a post-season game.

Willie Pep's Wife Sues for Divorce On Cruelty Charge

HARTFORD, Conn., Nov. 24 (U.P.).—Former World Featherweight Champion Willie Pep was sued for divorce today by his bride of four months.

The charge brought by the former Dolores Von Frenckell, was "intolerable cruelty." Pep, who had been married once before, was ordered to appear in Superior Court a week from today to arrange for temporary alimony. He married Miss Von Freckell in Elkton, Md., last July and honeymooned instead of showing up for a scheduled fight with Bobby Bell in Washington July 9. He later went through with the bout after being threatened with suspension in every National Boxing Association State.

This Game Will Surely Be Played Under Wraps

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Nov. 24 (AP). Abilene Christian College, Abilene, Tex., has been selected as one of the teams for the Refrigerator Bowl football game to be played here December 2. Abilene is undefeated and untied in its 10 games this season.

Brokers Loans Hop 26% Here During Week

By S. Oliver Goodman

Although Washington bank loans in the week ended November 15 edged forward to another all-time high, the rate of upturn was noticeably braked except for a 26 percent jump in brokers loans.

The credit aggregate outstanding on November 15 was $293,333,000, according to the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond. This was an increase of only $749,000 over the preceding week. The figures include the 17 local banks which are Reserve members.

Largest part of the week's credit increase was loans to brokers and dealers in securities here. Brokers loans totaled $3,038,000, a jump of 063,000 for the week.

Business and commercial loans rose to $124,410,000, from $123,847,000 in the previous week.

Real estate loans, reflecting tighter credit restrictions, slipped to $96,741,000 from $96,357,000. Other loans, including consumer credit, dipped $880,000 to $68,128,000.

Demand deposits of the Washington institutions, reflecting the normal mid-month expansion, totaled $842,976,000 as compared with $819,393,000 in the week ended November 8.

LIFE SPAN: A 20-year-old man taking a job in American industry today can look forward to an average of 48.4 more years of life, according to the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. Dr. Louis I. Dublin, chief statistical officer, said this is 11½ years more life than the worker of the same age could expect 40 years ago.

HIKES DIVIDEND: Government Employes Insurance Co. has placed capital stock on a $1.20 annual dividend basis by declaring a quarterly dividend of 30 cents a share. President Leo Goodwin said yesterday that hereafter Geico dividends will be declared quarterly instead of semi-annually. Previous dividends this year were the regular semi-annual payments of 50 cents a share, paid in January and July. The latest quarterly dividend is payable December 22 to stock of record December 15.

BOND PLANS: The Consolidated Gas Electric Light & Power Co. of Baltimore plans to register with the Securities and Exchange Commission a proposed offering of new bonds for 25 million dollars. The offering would be filed by the end of December and bids on the new securities invited during the latter part of January, President Charles P. Crane said.

ODD LOTS: Department store sales last week ran 7 percent above same 1949 week. Gains in the November 18 week ranged from 2 percent in the Richmond district to 11 percent at Cleveland . . . Administrators Study Complexity of Orders On Personal Status

It has taken nearly three months for the Government to get out rules, regulations, orders and decisions to guide Federal personnel actions under the Whitten rider. The rider and the many problems growing out of it were that complex and controversial.

Furthermore, more orders and directives are in the mill. Throughout Government today there are scores of persons whose main task is to determine what their agencies can and can't do under the rider and the many actions taken since to supplement it.

The whole problem is so unbelievably complicated that the average employe can't keep up with the developments that so vitally affect him and his job. And Civil Service hasn't helped matters by its failure to explain adequately its regulations, the most important single supplementary to the Whitten rider.

A top personnel director said yesterday he had been showered with documents from Federal agencies and questions from his employes since the Whitten rider had been enacted. A partial list of the documents he was referring to follow:

1. The President's order which places most Federal hiring on a temporary basis after December 1;

2. A Civil Service order authorizing agencies to make temporary appointments to the jobs of persons who enter the military service;

3. Civil Service's round-up of regulations which curb grade promotions, set up a new lay-off system, convert most temporary jobs to "indefinites," and fix the rights of veterans under the new system, among a dozen other provisions;

4. The President's order giving the Budget Bureau director the authority to set up a list of "defense" agencies under the Whitten rider, the list itself, and,

5. Various decisions by the Comptroller General interpreting the rider.

In addition, Civil Service will issue a list of "critical" jobs in the defense agencies to which permanent employes can be transferred with reemployment rights, and various amendments to the rules and regulations that have been issued.

Civil Service has made a stab at trying to simplify the whole cumbersome business by the use of the one word INDEFINITE to cover temporary appointments, grade promotions, inter-agency transfers, reinstatements and other such personnel actions that must be made under the Whitten rider. But the complex job is to inform each employe in detail what his rights are under an indefinite status.

The restriction on annual leave wasn't a part of the Whitten rider as many employes seem to believe. It was a separate and distinct rider. The Whitten and leave riders have this one connection—both originated in the House Appropriations Committee.

The leave rider, too, is having a chain effect on Federal employes. When it was enacted most employes thought they'd be able to take annual leave earned this year before the forfeit deadlines. But that was before the Korean war and longer hours and harder work for tens of thousands of employes. Many employes will lose some of their accumulated leave the end of next month because they can't be spared from their jobs.

The new efficiency rating system also has no connection with the Whitten rider. It was ordered in a separate law by Congress, to become effective next December 29. The regulations on it went out to Federal agencies several days ago. They will change the lay-off system as well as the method of rating employes.

The third and final column in this series will be published Sunday.

Housing Unit Sites Here Get Approval

Nine Locations In District Given Official Backing By Commissioners

By Thomas Winship
Post Reporter

The District Commissioners have formally approved nine locations for construction of 4000 public housing units here, it was learned last night.

The long-awaited action leaves but one other administrative act by the commissioners before the program could go into the brick and mortar stage.

The city heads next must sign a "cooperative agreemnt" with the Federal Housing and Home Finance Agency before the National Capital Housing Authority may secure funds for actual land purchase and building.

(The cooperative agreement would pledge the District government to raze a certain number of substandard houses and commit the District to provide public utilities to the housing projects on the same basis as it extends them to private developers.)

May Block Program

The city heads have indicated they will not sign the agreement—thus maintaining an effective block on the program—until NCHA promises to earmark a certain portion of its new public housing units to persons evicted from houses razed under the companion slum clearance program.

John Ihlder, NCHA executive director, maintains such a commitment would be both illegal and impractical. A compromise agreement is expected before next spring.

Ihlder said the commissioners approved the six outlying and three inlying sites last Tuesday. They are the same as he had proposed to the city heads the first of last month.

"This opens the way for the Authority to begin negotiations with land owners," Ihlder explained. "These negotiations will determine just what parcels may be acquired. Until then the parcels will not be publicly identified."

But the general boundaries of the three in-lying areas are known.

Boundaries Are Known

The boundaries of the three in-town areas on which both slum clearance and public housing may take place are:

1. Southwest section: Virginia ave. on the north, 7th st. on the west, James Creek pkwy. on the east, and P st. on the south.

2. Southeast section: Pennsylvania ave, on the north, S. Capitol st. on the west, 11th st. on the east and N st. on the south.

3. Northwest section: Rhode Island ave. on the north, 7th st. on the west, Florida ave. and 3d st. on the east and New York ave. on the south.

The National Capitol Park and Planning Commission previously had given its general approval to these locations.

Ihlder gave no clue as to the general location of the six outlying sites except to say some are vacant or sparsely-occupied. All sites are located within the District.

D. C. Family Outing Ends in Tragedy As Car Rams Into Loaded Dump Truck

A 78-year-old woman and her 2-year-old granddaughter were killed instantly yesterday when the car in which they were riding plowed into a dump truck on Shirley hwy., near Alexandria.

Three other members of the family were injured, one critically, in the collision, which happened shortly after 11 a. m. at the Lincolnia overpass, 5 miles west of Alexandria.

Pronounced dead at the scene were Mrs. Alice Edmundson of Salem, Ore., and Priscilla Edmundson, 2 of 3411 A st. se. The child had been thrown through the windshield of the car. Both were sitting in the front seat, police said.

Priscilla's father, Frederick Edmundson, 39, a patent examiner with the Department of Commerce, was driving the car, according to police. He was admitted to Alexandria Hospital in critical condition, with fractured ribs and right leg, undetermined chest injuries and severe shock.

Condition Not Serious

His two other children, Margaret, 7, and David, 3, both of whom were sitting in the back seat of the car, were admitted to Alexandria Hospital with cuts and bruises. Their condition is not serious.

The truck driver, Cecil Gladwell, 29, of 218 N. Pitt st., Alexandria, an employe of the L. C. Campbell Co., Groveton haulers, suffered head injuries and shock. He was admitted to Alexandria Hospital for observation.

Police reported Mrs. Edmundson had been visiting her son and his family for about a month and was planning to return to Oregon in a few days. The group was on a sight-seeing drive, they said. Edmundson's wife, Lois, had remained at home.

No Explanation

Police said they could find no explanation of the accident. Shirley Highway is dual lane and the road was clear of other traffic at the time, they reported, and tire marks indicated Edmundson applied the brakes only 15 feet behind the truck before striking it. Gladwell told them he was driving the truck, loaded with sand and gravel, at a speed of only 10 miles an hour, police said.

Two cars were demolished in a head-on collision last night about 10 o'clock on Route 240 near Georgetown Preparatory School in Garrett Park, Md. The seven persons injured in the smashup, three of them children, were rushed to Suburban Hospital.

The Chevy Chase Rescue Squad identified them as: Calvin Litten, 21, of 2526 N. Washington blvd., Arlington, reported in critical condition; Allen Shackleford, 43, his wife, Bertha, 41, and their three children, Thomas, 11, Wayne, 9, and Robert, 6; and Thomas Frick, 80.

Four persons, injured Thursday night in a two-car collision on Route 23 at Oakton, Va., were reported improving yesterday at Arlington Hospital.

Miss Fentin Fisk, 33, of Vienna, Va., was in fair condition with neck and chest injuries. Reported in satisfactory condition were Thomas Yarbrough, 16, of Fairfax Station, with a broken leg, head lacerations and possible fractured knee; Rufus G. Coldwell, 16, of Fairfax, fractured left hip, head lacerations and shock, and Robert Harris, 19, of Fairfax Station, face cuts and possible skull fracture.

Driven By Yarbrough

Coldwell and Harris were passengers in one of the cars, driven by Yarbrough. A third passenger, Robert Jenkins, 17, of Burke, was treated at the hospital for head cuts and a possible knee fracture and released.

Miss Fiske was a passenger in the other car, driven by James Jenkins of Merrifield, Va., according to police. His brother, Ashby Jenkins, 27, of Vienna, and his son, Charles, 7, who were in the car, were treated at the hospital for head injuries and released.

On Moving Day

Fire Damages Newly Built Residence

Dr. Robert J. Lee stood in the wrecked kitchen of his brand-new home. "I guess we're lucky at that," he said.

Fire had burned off part of the roof of his home at 2627 N. Nottingham st., Arlington, early yesterday, gutted the attic and littered kitchen and living room with scorched bits of plaster, wiring and insulation.

"On Wednesday," Dr. Lee said, "they finished building this house. Today, about 8 a. m., I was waiting at my old home for the moving van to take our furniture to the new place.

"We were going to move in today. Then they told me about the fire."

Firemen from Falls Church, Cherrydale and Ballston fought the 6 a. m. blaze in Lee's home. They were unable to determine its cause, but damage was estimated at about $5000.

"My wife and I are lucky, though," Dr. Lee said. "We have a 10-day-old premature baby, and if she'd been here this morning it might have been curtains for her."

Lee, a veterinarian employed by the Agriculture Department, said he and his family would be able to remain in the home they now rent at 5108 South 7th rd., Arlington, until repairs on the new house could be made.

He looked at the gaping hole in his roof. "When they told me about this fire, I thought it was a joke," he said.

"My wife? She just broke down and cried."

Court Orders Teenage Beer Party Probe

2 Youths Given Suspended Fines Of $30 Each

Arlington County Court Judge Harry R. Thomas yesterday ordered a thorough investigation of reports of teen-age drunkenness during a party of an unauthorized high school fraternity Thanksgiving night.

He ordered the probe after convicting two youths, 18 and 19 years old, of drunk and disorderly conduct at the beer party, held in the Virginia Highlands firehouse at 23d and S. Eads sts., Arlington.

At the County Court hearing, Police Pvts. Paul Heath and William Dinsmore testified there were more than 75 teen-agers at the party.

One of the convicted youths, Charles R. Workman, 18, of 2016 N. 13th st., Arlington, said "over half" of the youths were drunk and "some had passed out."

Judge Thomas ordered Assistant Commonwealth's Attorney Paul G. Varoutsos to investigate and "find out how they got that beer."

The other convicted youth was Charles J. Clay, 19, of 2706 S. 9th st., Arlington. Judge Thomas fined each $30 on the drunk and disorderly charges, but suspended the fine on good behavior.

The youths testified the beer party was given by the Delta Sigma Nu fraternity at Washington-Lee High School. School officials said fraternities are not sanctioned at the school.

Judge Thomas observed that there was "too much drinking going on at Arlington high school affairs." He recalled a recent near-riot at a Washington-Lee football game in which several policemen were assaulted by former students.

Pvts. Heath and Dinsmore testified they were summoned to the firehouse after an Arlington father telephoned police that his juvenile son came home intoxicated from the party about 11 p. m.

When the policemen arrived, they said, they saw "three boys coming down stairs carrying three empty beer kegs."

They said they found Workman in front of the firehouse and arrested him for being drunk. When Clay approached and hurled "abusive language" at the policemen, they said, they arrested him, too.

Pvt. Dinsmore said he was forced to strike Clay with his fist when the youth kicked him in the shin.

Car Passenger Jailed For Attacking Officer

Harrison Myers, 52, of Mount Airy, Md., was sentenced to 90 days in jail yesterday by Judge Charles W. Woodward in Montgomery County Circuit Court at Rockville, Md. after his conviction on charges of assaulting a policeman.

Myers was a passenger in a car which was stopped by County Policeman Warren Howes, who was directing traffic for a funeral at Damascus, Md., September 22. Myers got out and attacked the policeman, Howes testified.

Review Won On Fairfax Trailer Law

The Fairfax County Board of Supervisors yesterday won the first step in a legal fight to upset a Fairfax Circuit Court decision that threw out the county's trailer camp ordinance.

The Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals in Richmond granted a writ of error and agreed to review the verdict of Judge Elliott Marshall of Front Royal. Marshall held the ordinance invalid early this year. He heard the case in 1949 after Judge Paul E. Brown disqualified himself.

The lower court verdict was in favor of the American Trailer Co., which questioned legality of two enabling acts under which the trailer ordinance was adopted. The complainants objected chiefly to provisions of the ordinance imposing annual license fee on operators of trailer camps.

A petition asking a writ of error on the grounds that the enabling acts were valid were filed before the court of appeals last Wednesday by Hugh B. Marsh, commonwealth's attorney for the county, and Attorney James Keith of Fairfax.

No date has been set for the review.

Region Plan On Sewage Has New Backing

Planning Group's Support Sought For Joint Program

The Northern Virginia Regional Planning Commission will be asked next week to support an Arlington proposal that nearby Virginia communities collaborate in a study of regional sewage and water problems.

John W. Brookfield, Jr., chairman of the commission, said yesterday he would bring the matter to the commission's attention at its meeting Thursday at 8 p. m. at Fairfax Courthouse. He said he would "remind" members that they, themselves, had called for regional action more than a year ago.

In suggesting the study last week, the Arlington County Board called on Alexandria, Falls Church and Fairfax County to join with it in formation of an "interim" committee to consider the advisability of a regional sewage and water authority. Governing bodies of none of the three other communities has acted on the proposal as yet.

Arlington Board Member Robert W. Cox, who suggested the regional study, proposed that the committee look into the "significant economies" that might be affected by joint action of the Virginia communities.

The four communities, all having their own water system, have separate plans for sewage disposal. Arlington, which already has a disposal plant, is preparing to expand it; Fairfax is preparing to spend $1,105,000 for a plant, which also will be used by Falls Church, while Alexandria intends to ask voters next year to vote on a bond issue to finance a disposal program.

Brewed in 1906

Wurzburger Foams at Olmsted's

The Olmsted Restaurant officially turned on the flow of Wurzburger yesterday, thereby further cementing cultural relations between Washington and a famous Bavarian beer center.

On hand for the distinguished occasion was a group of prominent citizens and journalists, blonde Judy Holliday, starring in Garson Karin's "Born Yesterday" (at the Gayety); Col. James H. Kelly, former American military governor in Wurzburg, and John McGill, manager of Station WBCC, Bethesda-Chevy Chase.

Following the ceremony, sauerkraut, knockwurst and other appropriate dishes were served.

Hovering over the scene was James J. Brahms, co-owner, with Leonard J. Mitchell, of the restaurant, at 1336 G st. nw., of century-old Luchow's in New York—where through the years the Wurzburger has aroused the artistic appreciation of many a famous name. It had been brewed by Johann Philipp von Scheonborn on June 6, 1906, and sent by the thoughtful town councilmen of Wurzburg in a barrel with authentically rusted hoops.

In taste, it possessed a smoothness that recalled a Japanese poet's reference to the exquisite "ahness of things," had something of the effect of a mild martini, and would have made that authority, H. L. Mencken, when in his prime, roll his eyes with simpatico.

Driver Found Guilty on Drunk Charge

Jury Debates Less Than Half an Hour on Case Delayed 14 Times

After 14 Municipal Court continuances, James Horace Mitchell, 52, was found guilty yesterday of drunken driving.

The jury was out less than half an hour. Final disposition was postponed pending filing of a new trial motion.

Arrested October 21, 1949, Mitchell of 11 Riggs rd. ne., a salesman, was often in the court, but delays prevented the trial.

Court records indicated that the case was continued four times at Mitchell's request, once because his attorney, Denny Hughes, was ill, and once because the calendar was crowded.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Clark F. King said that the Government always had been ready for trial. Hughes denied that all continuances were at the defendant's request.

The case was sent to Judge Ellen K. Raedy yesterday.

At the trial, Police Pvt. Louis A. Pinner said that he arrested Mitchell at Missouri and New Hampshire ave. nw. The policeman said another motorist pointed out Mitchell was who weaving across the road.

Mitchell denied he was intoxicated, saying that he had only "two beers" at the time. He said that if he was unsteady on his feet, it was because he was "tired."

Mitchell pleaded guilty to drunken driving in 1940 and paid a $100 fine. In 1942, he forfeited $25 on a charge of failing to report an accident, and his driver's license was suspended for four months, records of the Department of Vehicles and Traffic show.

Wife Appeals Jail Sentence, Fined for Attacking Husband

A Kensington housewife yesterday was fined $5 instead of receiving a 10-day jail sentence after she appealed a conviction of assault on her husband.

Judge Charles W. Woodward, sitting in Montgomery County Circuit Court at Rockville, Md., agreed with her attorney that facts mitigated the case against Mrs. Lula May Sexton, 30.

Mrs. Sexton was convicted in Trial Magistrate Court in Bethesda October 9 of assaulting her husband, Norrell, and was sentenced to the 10-day jail sentence.

Yesterday she told the Circuit Court judge in her appeal that the Sextons' five children had been without sufficient food for three weeks before she attacked her husband, although Sexton and a son by a previous marriage had enough.

She said she struck her husband across the face several times with a switch when he refused to listen to her complaint that he was "poisoning the minds of the children" against her mother.

The attack was provoked because her 5-year-old daughter had made a slighting remark about her mother, Mrs. Sexton said. She switched the child on the legs with a forsythia switch.

Mrs. Sexton said that after she switched her husband, he struck her with a tennis racket.

The children since have been placed in foster homes, at the request of Mrs. Sexton and by order of the court.

Mrs. Kathryn J. Lawlor, Mrs. Sexton's attorney, said Mrs. Sexton had been punished enough by the loss of her children.

Two Arrested on Charges Of Lottery, Numbers Betting

Arraigned before United States Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence, they are Harry Elstein, 65, of 515 Ingraham st. nw., and Daniel R. Steger, 32, of 2721 11th st. nw.

Lawrence continued their cases to December 13. They were released under $1500 bond each.

Elstein was arrested at a valet shop at 609 G st. nw., of which he is proprietor. Vice Squad Capt. Roy Blick said police obtained a warrant for his arrest after an undercover man bet on a number for him.

Steger was arrested in a restaurant at 2900 11th st. nw., where he is employed as a cook, acording to police. Blick said a warrant also was obtained for his arrest after an undercover man placed a numbers wager for him.

Dennis Chavez, Jr., Accused In Drinking, Reckless Driving

Dennis Chavez, jr., 38, of 3327 Cleveland st. nw., yesterday was called into Arlington County Court on charges of being drunk in public and reckless driving in connection with an accident Wednesday night.

His hearing was continued in County Court until next Wednesday at 9:30 a. m. and Chavez was freed in $250 bond.

At the same time, Mrs. Imelda E. Chavez, 58, of the same address failed to appear in court and forfeited $8.75 collateral on a charge of being drunk in public at the same accident.

The charges grew out of an accident Wednesday night at Lee blvd. and N. Columbus st., Arlington, police said, when the Chavez car struck a second auto from behind, knocking it 60 feet.

Police said the driver of the second car, Conrad E. Winslow, 30, of Vienna, Va, had stopped on Lee blvd. before making a left turn.

Two occupants of the Chavez car, Mrs. Chavez and Squire Johnson of Charlotte, N. C., were reported to have been slightly injured, as was Mrs. Louise Winslow, wife of the second car's driver.

CTC Rate Testimony Termed 'Erroneous'

Capital Transit Co. testimony that Potomac Electric Power Co. needs only one-fifth of the rate increase requested was "erroneous and based on unsound methods," the District Public Utilities Commission was told yesterday.

The attack came from Lloyd B. Harrison, attorney for the commission that has been hearing the rate case off and on since last August. The PUC staff has recommended giving Pepco an increase that would yield $2,500,000 in additional revenue next year. Pepco has asked for $3,379,000.

The Capital Transit figures had been produced Monday by Robert E. Harvey, special assistant to the comptroller of CTC. He said Pepco had underestimated its 1951 revenue by a million dollars. This and other errors reduced from $3,379,000 to $684,500 the additional revenue it needs next year to earn its basic return, he said.

In cross-examination of Harvey, Harrison sought to prove the Capital Transit official had erred in computing 1951 revenue by (1) applying 1950 revenues to estimated 1951 kilowatt hour sales, but failing to consider that as consumption increases the price per kilowatt hour drops; (2) Estimating increased consumption in the commercial and industrial category—which uses 70 percent of Pepco's output—without considering whether the increase would be uniform among the five classes of customers it includes.

Postlude

Hungarian Quartet in 2d Concert

By Paul Hume

The Hungarian String Quartet paid the Library of Congress its second call in four weeks last night.

Having opened the Coolidge Festival late in Ooctober, they came back to play under the aegis of the Gertrude Clarke Whittall Foundation.

Their program opened with Mozart's D Major Quartet, K. 499, dating from 1786. In these works, coming after the perfection of the six dedicated to Haydn, we have Mozart in that profund mood that marked all the music of his last years.

The Hungarian Quartet played with their accustomed polish and stylistic perfection. Their tone and balance are admirable for Mozart's music as the Budapest Quartet always seems for that of Haydn.

When they reached the second quartet of Bela Bartok, they added new depths of sonority to their tone.

For the Bartok is a work of rich fabric. Here the composer is not yet seeking those outer limits of technique that come with his third and succeeding quartets. In the second quartet, he is still content with a harmonic scheme we can trace easily to his immediate predecessors and contemporaries.

In the rhythmic control and the delicacy with which they outlined the critical movements of the outer sections of the quartet, the Hungarians showed themselves worthy fellow countrymen of the late genius. In the astounding presto, they were four miracle workers.

Smetana's tragic E Minor Quartet closed the evening. It remains a unique piece, highly personal, and dramatic beyond the means of the string quartet. Yet Smetana put into it the materials he felt appropriate to the medium and knew it would emerge in proper proportion. The playing of the quartet was handsome in the first slow movements, and affecting in the finale. Only in the fast dance section was there some troublesome intonation.

Dr. Scherer Addresses Peace Group

The first Washington meeting of the Church Peace Mission was held last night at the Hamline Methodist Church. Dr. Paul E. Scherer of the Union Theological Seminary, New York City, gave an address on "The Christians Witness to Peace."

Dr. Scherer called on Christians to assert an active pacifism against total war and armament. He pointed out that war is not the worst of our sins, but that humanity's loss of faith in God is one of the worst. Pacifism, according to Dr. Scherer, does not mean an absolute renouncing of force, nor is it Utopian.

An open discussion on Christian peace action will be held today at 10:30 a. m. in the Friends Meeting House, 2111 Florida ave. nw. Following a noon mediation and prayer for world peace, the discussion will be continued at 2:00 p. m. A. J. Muste, executive secretary, Fellowship on Reconcilation, will lead the discussion.

Miss Cahill Bows at Chevy Chase Club Tea

By Marie McNair

MISS LOUISE MELISSA CAHILL made her debut yesterday at the Chevy Chase Club at a tea with dancing given by her mother, Mrs. James Augustine Cahill.

White and yellow chrysanthemums filled the club's spacious rooms and everywhere were bouquets of vari-colored flowers sent to the debutante on her day.

Standing with her mother as guests began to arrive, Miss Cahill wore a gown of embossed white net over pale blue taffeta, the voluminous skirt dipping at the back; the scalloped neckline edged in rhinestones. She held a cascade bouquet of white roses and pale blue delphiniums.

MRS. CAHILL'S gown was of jade green net with full skirt ending in a slight train. Appliqued roses and rhinestones bordered the scalloped neckline and her hat was a gold mesh calot with gold sequins. She wore a white orchid corsage.

The debutante's assistants, all wearing pastel carnation wristlets, were Miss Molly Holden, Miss Nancy Graham Kear, Miss Betsy Goodloe Porter, Miss Elizabeth McGowan, Miss Joan Pennington, Miss Geraldine Garrity and Miss Suzanne Wise.

Here for the party was the deb's sister, Mrs. John Floyd Waggaman 2d., who flew from California; another sister, Mrs. Joseph W. Stanley, with Mr. Stanley; Miss Jane Cahill, still another sister; and the Rev. Raymond Prescott Cahill, brother of the debutante.

FOLLOWING the tea at which Sidney and his orchestra played Miss Nancy Kear gave a supper party for her sister deb at the home of her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Frank Gregg Kear. The guests included Miss Cahill's assistants, Miss Mary Ann Robb, Miss Carol Cunningham, Miss Mary Alice Fravel and a matching number of young men.

Experiment Ruth

Nothing More Aging Than a Thick Waist

By Ann Lawrence

(Second day of Ruth's beauty program.)

ONE OF THE major ways for any woman to retain her youthful looks is to make certain that she keeps a youthful figure. There's nothing more aging than a thickened waist, bulgy thighs, a cushion of fat settled comfortably on each hip.

Ruth reported that she had dieted to lose nearly 20 pounds—remember? She's down, now, to 132 pounds, but with a small frame—5 feet 3 inches—she will look and feel better if her weight is around 120 pounds.

With her diet, which we'll discuss later, she needs exercise. For, as one gymnastic instructor puts it, no matter how many salads you eat, you must "stretch like a kitten" if you want a fine figure.

NOT ALL OF us need the same measurements. But all of us do need firm lines, grace and proportion. Three hours of knocking yourself out on Saturday and a batch of good intentions the rest of the week produce nothing more than sore muscles on Sunday.

To a Fifth ave. salon we went with Ruth, there to learn 10 figure-tailoring exercises. For extra pull and more fun, students in the salon use the "lithe-line," to stretch like a kitten. It's an inexpensive little gadget that looks just like an elastic skip rope. But with or without the prop, you can learn to do all these exercises in your own bedroom.

Here is the first exercise which Ruth learned, with the help of Diane, head instructor at the salon. It's a ballet stretch for slimming the legs and thighs. Seated on the floor, hold the inside of your ankle and raise that leg as high as you can, straightening your knee as you elevate your leg. Repeat with the other leg. Then repeat 20 times with each leg.

NOW, FOR a waist and tummy slimmer, try this:

Lie on your back, with the "lithe-line" loops on both feet. Holding the center of the line, bring both feet up in the air and slowly lower them to the floor. Repeat 10 times daily.

And here's the hip-parer Ruth learned: Lie on your back with your knees bent, feet on floor, arms over your head. With the lithe-line taut, roll to the right until side of thigh touches the floor. Back to the center, and then roll to the left. Continue for 50 counts.

With the State Societies

Take It From the Illinoisians, There's No Excuse for Blues

By Nicha Searle

NO REASON to cry the blues 'cause you couldn't get to your home State for the Thanksgiving weekend.

Just meet the home-town folks at one of the State society get-togethers. Illinois, for example, is having a dance tonight in the west ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel.

Dancing will be from 10 p. m. to 1 a. m. to the music of Dave McWilliams' orchestra. Bring along your house guests, says the Illinois State Society. They'll soon feel as at home and know everyone with the aid of the "Paul Jones."

THE MINNESOTA people are having so much fun at their parties that they decided to share a good thing. For their December 1 dance, the Gopher Staters are going to see how many of their friends they can bring along, with a prize going to the couple showing up with the greatest number of guests.

On Friday, they will dance from 9:30 to 12:30 p. m., with the Cavaliers supplying the dance tempo. Tables will be reserved for servicemen and women, Government gals and fellows as well as for private parties.

The Minnesota younger set is not being left out either! In order that the children of the Gopher Staters know each other, the society has organized a junior Minnesota club where the teen-agers can meet and have their own party.

WITH ONE HOLIDAY in the past, the Georgia State Society is planning for another. They will hold their pre-Christmas dance party in the west ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel on December 2.

Mrs. Clark Tate will present a musical program at 9:30 p. m. while the guests are being received by Mrs. Robert Ramspeck, president of the society. Mrs. Ramspeck will be assisted by Mr. Ramspeck, Senator Richard B. Russell, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Peterson, Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. Clark Tate, Mrs. Sara Baton, Mrs. Evie Walk, Miss Elizabeth Brown and Miss Gladys Aaron. Dancing will begin at 10 p. m.

Members of the press from Georgia will be the honor guests at the party.

THE NEBRASKA STATE SOCIETY has a cocktail party on its calendar for December 3. It will be from 4 to 7 p. m. in the Officers' Club of the Naval Gun Factory.

C&P Rejects Union's Wage Talk Request

The Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. yesterday rejected for a third time a union request for voluntary reopening of wage negotiations for some 6000 employes.

However, the company apparently left the door open for further consideration of the move for cost-of-living wage increase.

J. R. B. Crigler, vice president and general manager of C. & P., yesterday told a delegation from Division 36, CIO Communications Workers of America, that the company is not willing to reopen the wage talks at this time, but would continue to study the community wage pattern.

Twice before, Division 36, representing 3500 craft and commercial employes, has asked C&P to consider discussing wages on the present contract, which runs into next May.

Yesterday, the union representatives added a new item to their argument. The union pointed out that only this week 320 local employes of Western Electric, which, like C&P, is a Bell System subsidiary, won wage increases from 9 to 14 cents an hour after an 11-day strike.

Another argument pressed by the union leaders is that Northwestern Bell has undertaken similar voluntary wage discussions with its union employes in a five-State area and has offered increases of $2 to $5 a week. The union there has been asking "at least" $3 to $5 a week, the pay settlement in the recent 11-day strike of Michigan Bell employes.

Glenn E. Watts, president of Division 36, said yesterday that his local intends to keep pressing for wage readjustments with C. & P.

Mrs. Eleanor J. Palmer, president of Division 50, which represents 2700 C. & P. operators, disclosed last night that she has also asked C. & P. for new wage talks in the aftermath of the Western Electric strike.

Dr. Jachna Named To Glenn Dale Sanitarium Post

The District Commissioners approved yesterday the temporary appointment of Dr. John S. Jachna, former Polish army physician and German war prisoner, to the medical staff of Glenn Dale Tuberculosis Sanitarium.

Jachna will serve in the place of Dr. Stephen Kylar while the latter is on active duty with the Army. Jachna, 40, was a prisoner of the Germans for most of World War II, served with UNRRA in Germany for a year after the war and has been attached to hospitals near Chicago for the last three years.

The commissioners also approved two transfers at Gallinger Hospital. Dr. Richard L. Whelton, assistant superintendent for medicine, will take charge of the admitting office, a position in which he has been acting for several months. Dr. Lillian Malone, assistant chief psychiatrist, will take over the post of assistant superintendent.

Arlington Hospital To Extend Drive For New Addition

Arlington Hospital will get its new 90-bed wing even if it takes two years, it has been decided by leaders of the hospital's campaign to raise $400,000 for the addition.

The board of trustees decided that the program should be continued in spite of the elimination of a $207,000 Government grant under the Hill-Burton Act.

Clarke Daniel, campaign chairman, said: "The need is so great to the residents of Arlington, Falls Church, and parts of Fairfax County that there is no other course to be taken."

The drive will be extended over a longer period of time than was expected, it was announced.

There will also be a community-wide solicitation during the early spring, the date to be announced later.

County's Civil Defense Plans to Be Reviewed

A review of developments in the civil defense program as it affects Montgomery County will be given by Edward L. Foster, Montgomery County Civil Defense Director, before the Allied Civic Group of Silver Spring, Md. Monday at 8 p. m. in the Liquor Control Board Building, Colesville rd.

The program also will include Joan Membert and Robert Petree, seniors at Montgomery Blair High School, who will speak on closer cooperation between the public schools and the community as a whole.

Women's 'Play Night' To Start in Arlington

Arlington women may play basketball, volleyball, badminton and ping pong, and do exercises at a "play night" sponsored by the Arlington Recreation Department on November 28 at 7 p. m. at Swanson Junior High School, 5800 N. Washington blvd., Arlington. The program will continue each Tuesday night thereafter.

Applicants, who must be 20 or older, may register by calling Owens 8888.

Talk by Dr. Thompson

Dr. A. F. Thompson, chief of technical information service, Atomic Energy Commission, will address a dinner meeting of the D. C. Chapter of the Science-Technology Group of the Special Libraries Association at 6:30 p. m. Tuesday in the Highlands Restaurant, Connecticut ave. at California st. nw.

Thieves Take $500 to $1500

A safe in a Brentwood (Md.) food distributing company office was ripped open and between $500 and $1500 in cash stolen during the Thanksgiving holiday.

George Palladino, branch manager of Good Brothers, Inc., 3810 37th pl., said the thieves entered through a rear window and ripped off the top of the safe.

The money represented the Wednesday collections of 16 route salesmen, he said.

A large safe, stolen November 17 from the Princess Market, 85 H st. nw., was found yesterday by several boys in a wooded area near Carmody Hills, Md.

The safe had been ripped open and $1182 in cash removed.

Two men accused by police of entering two churches and a real estate office in Washington early Thursday, were held under $15,000 bond each yesterday.

Charged with three counts each of housebreaking, they are: William Russell (Country) Carpenter, 47, a mechanic, of Unionville, Va., and Hampton Ray Lackey, 34, a printer, whose address police gave as 833 5th st. ne.

The two men are accused of entering: the Mount Carmel Baptist Church, 3d and I sts. nw., blowing open the safe and removing between $600 and $700.

The Ryland Methodist Church, Branch ave. and S st. se., which has no safe but which was ransacked.

The real estate office of Adelbert W. Lee, member of the school board, at 3211 Pennsylvania ave. se., where the safe was opened but nothing taken.

Klavan's Ravin' In the Arena Now

By Sonia Stein

SUCCESS WAS written all over the affair. When Gene Klavan, WTOP's dead-of-night disk jockey, originated his Saturday night show from the Arena Stage last week, he covered himself with honor and his audience with smiles. Klavan was driven to finding an auditorium because his nocturnal visitors, particularly on Saturdays, were taxing the resources of the WTOP reception department, which is non-existent at the hours of 12:30 a. m. to 2, when Klavan operates.

Klavan

Tonight the Arena Stage will again play host to Klavan and all his little playmates. The four-square approach of the audience to the stage at that theater is ideal for Klavan's intimate kind of show. As Klavan remarks: "The audience completely surrounds the stage. It's friendly. Informal. Integral. Insufferable."

The theater, meantime, is incurring no harm, being plugged on a 50,000 watt station and playing host to many people who never knew the new repertory theater existed, or at least never knew it was so handsomely redecorated since its old days as the Hippodrome.

KLAVAN OPERATED under a handicap last week. He was being shot at—by a Life photographer who had heard about the ocarina craze Klavan started in the teenage circles.

It was also a new field for him, trying to be funny for an audience in the studio and an audience at home simultaneously. What the home audience thought of the proceedings I can't say. But I can testify that the capacity audience at the Arena was happy—like proverbial pigs in clover. And Klavan was happy in their midst, a state of mind which made itself felt in his manner and material.

Since the deal is free, it makes a charming place for short-budgeted young men to take their fair lady after the movies and coke Saturday night—if fair lady's fond family doesn't object to the late hours.

In deference to the Arena's current stage offering, William Shakespeare's "Taming of the Shrew," Klavan built his own sketch around a soap opera in Bill Shakespeare's style. Some dilly. When Juliet called out "Romeo, Romeo wherefore art thou, Romeo," she was answered by a warrior named "Macbet" who evidently inhabits middle Brooklyn, offering to substitute.

"Macbet" proceeds to let Juliet know that Romeo is two-timing her. "I am undone," she shrieks from her balcony. "Well, button up and come on down," the practical lad suggests.

The soap opera was complete with commercial. Many of Klavan's best efforts are satires on the radio medium but his skits cover all the ground.

THE GUESTS on Klavan's show are related to Klavan's current project—promoting the idea that the sweet potato with a whimper is a musical instrument. Last week Klavan's guest was a retired Navy man who has made himself the biggest (and I think the sweetest) sweet potato in the world.

Possibly next Saturday, or soon anyway, Gene will have "The Potato Bugs" from "Call Me Madam" as guests. Those boys will have a narrow squeak getting to Gene's show. Their stint at the theater ends at 10:30 p. m. New York police will escort them to a waiting plane at LaGuardia Airport. Washington police will escort them in from National Airport, presumably to the Arena stage. But the police may justifiably regard the playing of an ocarina as a criminal offense, so the boys better keep their eye on their destination. New York ave and 9th st. is the Arena Stage. If they head you toward New York and 5th, boys, they've got something else in mind.

The DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Couldn't Have Happened To a Better Guy

George L. Haithcock of TWA passes along the story of one of the airline's patrons who rushed up to the ticket counter at National Airport the other day, identified himself, and said: "I guess I've missed my plane, haven't I?"

"Oh, yes," the clerk assured him. "That flight left on schedule, an hour ago."

"I sure feel silly about this," mused the tardy traveler. "I'm an alarm clock salesman, and I overslept—with 74 alarm clocks in the sample case beside my bed."

TV REVISITED

Television, I discover, is a controversial subject. Charles Alldredge, whose public relations offices are at 1416 F st. nw., responds to my recent Mail Bag item and disagrees with most of what I said.

Mrs. H. E. Hickey had written that her family's habits have been profoundly changed since the advent of TV. I replied that I thought we'd soon learn to live with television, and go back to an orderly, balanced existence.

But District Liner Alldredge contends that Mrs. Hickey's experience is typical, that these new family habits are becoming fixed into permanent patterns, and that his firm's research indicates that TV's effects will be both profound and lasting.

An irate Washington correspondent who wishes to remain anonymous takes a different tack. He says television is for morons only, so can't possibly affect the reading habits of the Nation because anybody who has learned to read wouldn't waste time looking at television.

Far more temperate in his remarks is Frank R. McGregor of Washington Appliance Distributors, Inc., 1632 M st. nw.

He agrees that we'll learn to incorporate televiewing into our activities and eventually get back to that "orderly, balanced existence" I mentioned. But he does permit himself one small doubt.

"In these hazardous, nerve-wracking times," he writes, "can you name three people who are really living an orderly, balanced existence?"

One of the shrewdest men in the industry, Sol Taishoff, editor and publisher of "Broadcasting and Telecasting Magazine," refuses to get excited about predictions that TV will ruin radio, the movies and publications of all sorts. He puts it this way:

"Radio newscasts were supposed to make newspapers obsolete. The newsmagazines were supposed to finish the job. Radio was supposed to put the phonograph companies out of business. Television is supposed to wreck the movies and just about everything else in sight.

"But the fact of the matter is that no new medium has ever displaced an existing medium. Technological advances bring with them temporary dislocations and adjustments. But with a shortened work week and therefore more leisure time, we find ourselves reading more books, magazines and newspapers than our grandfathers — yet with enough time left over to listen to the radio and the phonograph, watch movies and television, and engage in countless other recently developed activities."

I'll buy Sol's viewpoint, with one postscript. I agree that there's no need for alarm. But I do think there's room for concern—concern that we spend our leisure time properly.

You can't tell me that our family and cultural life is going to the dogs just because television was invented. But televiewers—especially young ones—can waste much precious time by looking at the worst that the medium offers, rather than at the best.

My TV set brings me some truly worthwhile programs. But it also offers the sort of fare that has given rise to the wisecrack:

"The trouble with television is that nothing seems to be rehearsed except the wrestling matches."

BULL MARKET

While I wore that black patch over my right eye, I got a standard greeting of "Hello, One-eye" from Morris Katz, who prepares our financial page business chart from a nearby desk.

Yesterday I finally got rid of the patch and switched to dark glasses. Katz, ever the statistician, exclaimed:

"My, my! A 300 percent gain in one day—from one eye to four."

Reporter Mel Altshuler stopped to inquire what was wrong and said: "You're seeing a doctor, of course?" Before I could assure him that I was, he added the explanatory afterthought: "Out of the good eye, that is."

Reports Plentiful, 'Saucers' Nil

By Drew Pearson

Though a large part of the American public appears to be convinced that flying saucers do exist, so far the Air Force has not been able to track down a single bona fide saucer.

PEARSON

This is despite the fact that United States aviators have spent hour upon hour checking reports not only of flying saucers, but of such weird phenomena as midgets from Venus, shooting stars, and even an old washtub.

This column has now been able to examine Air Force files, and it is quite evident that the Air Force has done a painstaking job of trying to establish whether or not flying saucers do exist.

These files show that considerable time was even spent checking the report received from Movie Actor Bruce Cabot and the Wyandotte Echo, a newspaper published in Kansas City, that corpses of blond, beardless 3-foot men from Venus had been seen arriving on a flying saucer by a man named Coulter.

Dead on arrival, these space-traveling midgets had no cavities in their teeth, and wore shoes resembling human skin according to the story told the Air Force. Furthermore, Coulter was supposed to have as proof of this visit from Venus—a lunar clock operating on a 28-day cycle, a space radio, and gear from the flying saucer, all of them supposedly arriving with the blond midgets from Venus.

So the Air Force, as it does with most of these rumors, painstakingly and patiently investigated.

The mysterious Mr. Coulter turned out to be George Koehler of Denver, an advertising salesman for radio station KMYR. He produced the flying-saucer gear, but it turned out to be a mundane product of this planet, stamped with the Roman numeral VI. His space radio was a chunk of metal that utterly failed to pick up a message or even a wheeze from space.

In the face of this evidence, Koehler still claimed knowledge of the little men, but refused to divulge his source and drastically revised his story.

According to the confidential Air Force report, "Koehler stated that he had no parts of flying saucers in his possession at present. He denied having ever seen any flying saucer or its occupants."

Flying Washtub

Another hot tip which Air Force investigators patiently tracked down was that a flying saucer had actually crashed near Warren, Minn. The report was traced to Walter Sirek, a service station operator, who directed the investigators to look behind Nish's Tavern.

What they saw was summed up in the secret Air Force files as follows: "The machine was obviously made from various objects such as an old washing machine cover, part of a radio set chassis and a spent insecticide bomb."

It developed that Ted Heyen and Robert Schaeffer, who run the local hardware store, had made the "flying saucer" as a joke.

The Air Force has even received pictures of saucers in flight. The most spectacular was a movie of two silvery discs streaking over the baseball park at Great Falls, Mont., sent in by Nick Mariana, park manager.

However, investigators found that the pictures were taken between 11:20 and 11:35 a. m. on August 15. By coincidence, two silvery F-84 jet fighters from Ladd Air Force Base, Alaska, flew high over Great Falls at exactly that time. The sun was shining so that reflections from the high-flying jets appeared as two silvery blurs, like saucers.

Once the Air Force's own radar screen near Wright Field, Ohio, picked up what appeared to be a flying saucer drifting eastward at 20 miles per hour. But prompt investigation showed it to be only a dense black cloud so charged with electronic particles that it appeared on radar.

Meanwhile, flying saucer reports continue to pour into the Air Force at the rate of five or six per day but, so far, not a one has ever materialized.

Missing GIs

One tragic and unpublicized fact about the Korean war is that at this writing the Army has only been able to release 138 prisoners of war from Korean prison camps.

This leaves approximately 4000 Americans still missing. Originally the Army believed that most of these missing GIs had been killed in action. However, since U. N. troops have now traveled the entire length of Korea without recovering the bodies of these missing men, it is believed they must have been taken prisoners and removed to Siberia.

So far, Chinese troops have treated American prisoners almost as if they were allies, returning many of them to American lines. But if the 4000 GIs were transported into Siberia by the Russians, the story may be different. This possibility is giving the Army great concern.

NOTE—As of the last official count, 4144 GIs were listed as missing.

Lady Diplomats—Madame Minister Perle Mesta put up a gallant fight but she lost. She's going to have to be satisfied with being a plain "Minister" instead of a full-fledged "Ambassador" to Luxembourg . . . Main reason Perle came back to Washington was to persuade the President to raise her American Legation to a full Embassy. Even though she's a close friend of Mr. Truman's, he said no. . . Meanwhile, the other lady diplomat, Eugenie Anderson in Denmark, will continue to reign supreme as the only lady Ambassador in the United States diplomatic corps.

No Aid for Tibet—United States Ambassador Austin has privately advised El Salvador to give up its campaign to get the United Nations to rescue Tibet. The United Nations, Austin said, has enough trouble in Korea without taking on more headaches in the most mountainous and inaccessible country in the world.

Treaty for Japan — President Truman has told Secretary Acheson that unless Russia answers within the next month, he is in favor of going ahead and holding the Japanese peace treaty conference without Soviet representatives. The President told this to Acheson and John Foster Dulles during a secret meeting at which they reported that Russia has not yet even indicated it will attend the conference.
